PRESIDENT READS OWN MESSAGE TO CONGRESS

From Speaker's Rostrum in House Wilson Delivers His Counsel to Law-Makers in Person.

EVENT ATTRACTS NOTABLE THRONG

Washington, April 8.—President Wilson stood on the speaker's rostrum in the hall of the house today and personally read his first message to congress, the first president since John Adams to exercise that privilege.

The renewal of a custom a century abandoned and now surrounded by such wide differences of opinion among members of congress itself, attracted to the capitol an assemblage necessarily less in numbers, but no less distinguished than the company which attended the president's inauguration. Galleries were packed with national figures, Mrs. Wilson and her three daughters and the women of the cabinet circle prominent among them.

Nations Represented.

The diplomatic gallery probably contained a representative of every nation with an envoy in the foreign corps here. Distinguished public men who have received the thanks of congress and were therefore entitled to be on the floor of the house availed themselves of the right conspicuous among them, Admiral Dewey.

A moving picture machine was installed to preserve a record of the historic event for the government's archives.

President Wilson slipped away from the white house quietly after the cabinet meeting, accompanied only by his secretary, and one secret service man and upon arriving at the capitol was escorted to the rest room in the house where Speaker Clark sat at one side and Vice President Marshall at the other.

The president spenking with his usual clarity of tone and notable diction read his message while the company, actually packed in the chamber, gave the closest attention.

Puts In a Preface.

President Wilson began his message as follows:

"I am very glad indeed to have this opportunity to address the two houses directly and to verify for myself the impression that the president of the United States is a person, not a mere department of the government, hailing congress from some isolated island of jealous power sending messages, not speaking naturally and with his own voice, that he is a human being trying to cooperate with other human beings in a common service. After this pleasant experience I shall feel quite normal in all our dealings with one another."

Was Unusually Brief.

The message itself was an unusually brief document, dealing exclusively with the need for a thorough, moderate and well-considered revision of the tariff. The president drew attention to the necessity for an early reform in the banking and currency laws but refrained, he said, from urging, for the present, any other legislation that might divert the energies of congress "from its clearly defined duty" toward the tariff question.

The message referred to no particular schedule, mentioned no rates, and included no statistics. It was an enunciation of the president's principles on tariff revision. His specific views and ideas as to rates and duties, it has been generally accepted, are contained in the tariff bill itself which he is now considering in detail. The president's decision to put the weight of the administration's influence behind the bill with its various schedules as drawn by the house ways and means committee caused him to omit specific reference to tariff rates until the measure was finally agreed upon in the opening days of the present session.

The message urged that special privilege and exemptions from competition be cut out of the nation's tariff system and that the revision be made "to square with the facts as they are." At the outset, the president called attention to the party's pledge for tariff reduction.

The President's Message.

The complete text of the message is as follows:

To the Senate and House of Representatives: I have called the congress together in extraordinary session because a duty was laid upon the party now in power at the recent elections which it ought to perform promptly in order that the burden carried by the people under existing law may be lightened as soon as possible and in order, also, that the business interests of the country may not be kept too long in suspense as to what the fiscal changes are to be to which they will be required to adjust themselves. It is clear that the whole country expects the tariff duties to be altered. They must be changed to meet the radical alteration in the conditions of our economic life which the country has witnessed within the last generation. While the whole face and method of our industrial and commercial life were being changed beyond recognition the tariff schedules have remained what Jersey City, N. J., April 8.—Going, going, who wants a wig? The United States government advertises for sale a whole bale of them, of all kinds and colors of hair. The sale will be at auction in the Jersey City postoffice on Thursday afternoon. The wigs were recently seized by the customs officials in Hoboken when an attempt to smuggle them into this city was discovered.

"I'M THROUGH WITH GOLF," DECLARES MR. MARSHALL.

Washington, April 8. Vice President Marshall will play golf no more, unless the game is "debrutalized." He made that plain today.

"On Saturday I played 18 holes," he said today with a reminiscently pained expression. "I had not taken any exercise for some time. I had played nine holes a few times in Arizona. Well, Saturday I struck at that ball with all my might some 200 times. I sent it into the woods, into the water and every place that it should not go. That night I was so tired I did not eat a bite of dinner. I am not over it yet. I am through with golf."

MARKETING AND FARM CREDITS

Theme of National Conference Now in Session at Chicago.

REMEDY FOR EVIL

Chicago, April 8. The first national conference of marketing and farm credits, which seeks a remedy for the evils existing in the marketing of farm products and for a more equitable distribution of them, opened today for a three days' meeting.

The organization was instituted as the result of a meeting of farmers and farmers' representatives in Texas, 1911, held to discuss the distribution of yield of the farms, but this is the first time representatives with the authority to form concrete plans for the results desired have been brought together. Agricultural colleges and schools, state universities, leaders of agricultural organizations, farm journals and the agricultural department of the government are represented.

One of the main purposes of the conference is to seek the creation of a bureau of markets of the United States government with annual appropriations sufficient for the work and carrying with it a member of the president's cabinet. Another purpose is the organization of the fruit growers of the middle west into a selling agency and of agricultural editors to champion the marketing plan and to conduct a campaign of education among farmers and consumers.

The call for the conference was issued by Frank P. Boland, Dallas, Texas; Ben F. Bilter, Huntington, Ind., and Frank E. Long, Chicago, as members of the arrangement committee, and Charles W. Holman, of Chicago. Secretary Harry A. Wheeler, president of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of the United States, called the convention to order and delivered an address of welcome. He was followed by President Charles R. Van Hise, of the University of Wisconsin.

BE VACCINATED OR GET NO FOOD

Fear of Smallpox Epidemic Among Flood Refugees Leads to Ruling.

RIVERS NOW FALLING

Evansville, Ind., April 8.—Fear of a widespread epidemic of small pox from the flood refugees along the lower Ohio river caused the government representatives doing relief work here to refuse rations today to all persons who declined to be vaccinated. Many cases of small pox have been reported.

The river here has fallen almost a foot since Sunday, but has not freed many of the 75 city blocks here which were inundated by backwater. The fall in the past twenty-four hours was fourtenth of a foot.

Sections on the outskirts of the city are still patrolled by special water police and drinking water is delivered in boats hired by the city.

Government relief work continues in the Ohio river and Wabash valley's two federal boats are at work in the immediate vicinity of Evansville. The Kentucky today went to Golconda and vicinity to relieve 2,000 refugees. The Isabelle, a boat chartered by the government in this city has been ordered with more food and clothing to Uniontown where 2,500 people are suffering from the cold drizzle prevailing in this section.

A meeting of the city board of health will be held late today to determine a course to keep down possible epidemics that may follow the forcing of sewage into city streets as the result of overflowed sewers.

SHOULD REMOVE FILTHY REFUSE

Crull Says Future Health of City is a Mechanical Proposition.

THE RELIEF FUNDS

"It is a mechanical proposition to rid Fort Wayne of that which will eventually become a menace to the public's health," declared Dr. Eric Crull, secretary of the board of health this morning. "People in the submerged district on lower Fairmount Place have been scattering a lot of disinfectants about their premises in order to insure the safety of their health, but disinfectants is not the stuff at this stage of the game."

Dr. Crull states that the city must first get rid of the filthy refuse that has accumulated in certain portions of

AMERICANS ARE DODGING BULLETS

Severe Fighting Across the Mexican Line from Naco, Arizona.

OJEDA TRIMS REBELS

Naco, Sonora, April 8.—Desperate fighting between Ojeda's federals and state troops opened at 8:30 this morning. The scene of the battle was less than a mile below Naco. Bullets fell on the American side of the line and two American soldiers on border patrol were wounded, one in the shoulder and one in the hand.

Ojeda had the state troops at a disadvantage in spite of their superior numbers. The residents of Naco, Ari., are congregated in buildings as far as possible from the scene of the fight in an effort to escape the bullets, which are falling in showers near the international line.

WAS "GETTING TOO HOT."

El Paso, Texas, April 8. Fighting began today at Naco, Sonora, opposite the Arizona town of that name, between the small federal garrison under Gen. Pedro Ojeda and a large force of rebels. News of the battle came in a private message but the wire soon ceased working, the operator on the American side saying "It was getting too hot" for him.

TIME IS EXTENDED.

Missouri Supreme Court Acts in Case of W. R. Nelson.

Jefferson City, Mo., April 8.—The supreme court today extended the time for taking testimony in the habeas corpus case of William R. Nelson, editor and owner of the Kansas City Star, who was sentenced to one day's imprisonment on a charge of contempt of court to April 15.

SLIPPER IS STOLEN FROM FOOT OF NEW YORK MISS.

New York, April 8. Some young man is carrying around today a tiny patent leather slipper with a silver buckle which he stole last night from Jean Littlefield, a small and dainty girl who lives in the Bronx, while she was ascending the steps of a subway station. The theft occurred during rush hours and Miss Littlefield thought at first that the loss of her shoe was accidental, but as she turned about several women told her they had seen a young man behind her grab it by the heel as she raised her foot from the step and then deftly place the slipper in his pocket. The thief escaped. Miss Littlefield, in one silken foot, limped and hobbled to the street, where a big policeman picked her up in his arms and carried her to a shoe store. The crowd that gathered was so large that the officer had to call help to disperse it.

YOU'LL VOTE FOR SENATORS

Direct Election is Now a Provision of Federal Constitution.

CONNECTICUT IS DECIDING FACTOR

Its Ratification Action Completes Needed Majority of States.

Washington, April 8. Direct election of United States senators became one of the provisions of the constitution today by Connecticut's ratification of the amendment to that effect. Thirty-six states, the requisite three-fourths of all in the union, now have have approved the change.

It remains only for the governors of all states which have acted favorably to formally notify Secretary Bryan and for him to issue a proclamation announcing the change. The amendment to the constitution is the second within the last few months.

How Amendment Reads.

The new amendment to the constitution, for the popular election of United States senators, is the seventeenth to be adopted. It reads:

"The senate of the United States shall be composed of two senators from each state, elected by the people thereof, for six years; and each senator shall have one vote. The electors in each state shall have the qualifications requisite for electors of the most numerous branch of the state legislatures.

SAYS HE SKIPPED WITH HER JEWELS

Former Fort Wayne Girl Overtakes a Smooth Swindler.

IS HELD IN CHICAGO

Chicago, April 8.- Jack Lewis, being held here on complaint of Miss Nellie Newcomb that after what purported to be a marriage ceremony he deserted her with jewelry valued at $3,500, was identified today by operatives of a private detective agency as Weaver E. Clark, of Richmond, Va. This agency and the Milwaukee police have been looking for Clark since last summer as he is charged by Mrs. J. E. Temple, of Little Rock, Ark., with the theft of jewels worth $5,500.

According to the records the alleged swindler met Mrs. Temple while promoting a mining scheme. She accompanied him to Milwaukee to be married, but, stopping on the way at Chicago, she yielded to Clark's persuasions and purchased a large amount of jewelry. They had scarcely arrived in Milwaukee when Clark and the jewels disappeared. The local jewelry firm which sold the ornaments to Mrs. Temple identified a photograph of Lewis as that of the young man who accompanied Mrs. Temple on her shopping tour.

According to Miss Newcomb, who lived formerly at Fort Wayne, Ind., she met and married Lewis in San Francisco and he deserted her in Portland, Ore. She recognized him Sunday night in a large cafe. He denied that he is Lewis, but is being held.

POPE SUFFERS FROM RELAPSE

Roman Pontiff is Again Stricken by Illness During Night.

COMPLETE REPOSE HAS BEEN ORDERED

Alarming Condition of Holy Father Due to Affection of Kidneys.

Rome, April 8.—Pope Pius suffered a severe relapse in the course of last night. He was very feverish, his temperature rising to 100 degrees.

Professor Fittore Marchafava was with him for an hour.

After a thorough examination the physician insisted that the pontiff should take complete repose and forbade him even to receive the usual daily report on Vatican affairs.

Although the pope's temperature had diminished somewhat during the forenoon His Holiness remained in bed, the doctors in attendance insisting that he must not rise today.

The only persons besides the physicians who were permitted to see the pope were Cardinal Merry del Val, the papal secretary of state and the sisters and a niece of the pontiff.

No official bulletin has been issued concerning his condition but reports are in circulation that the relapse was due to an affection of the kidneys.

The condition of the pope improved considerably toward evening. At half past five his physician announced that the fever was decreasing.

An Official Statement.

An official statement on the pope's condition published in the Osservatore Romano this evening says:

"Since yesterday evening the holy father has been indisposed with a relapse of influenza. His condition is causing no anxiety, but he requires much rest."

MICHIGAN RAPS VOTES FOR WOMEN

Equal Suffrage is Again Defeated by a Large Majority.

OTHER CHANGES WIN

Detroit, Mich., April 8.—Incomplete returns from half of the state today showed a majority of 41,580 votes cast against woman suffrage in yesterday's election and the most enthusiastic supporters of the movement are admitting defeat.

The vote so far reported is largely from the cities and it is expected the rural districts would cut down the majority from ten to twenty thousand. All of the other constitutional amendments including the initiative, referendum and recall, carried by good majorities.

The republicans are claiming the state ticket by pluralities of from 30,000 to 50,000. The progressive party, which led the ticket last fall, will finish third at the best.

A practically complete city count shows that Detroit passed the municipal ownership of street railways measure by a vote of 39,563 to 9,164.

Ed Dicey's Burglar

WHEN Ed Dicey, of the Temple orchestra was awakened the other morning at 2 o'clock by his wife who heard a fumbling at the doorknob of the front door, he sat up and listened. No matter whether or not Mrs. Dicey may have been mistaken concerning anything at any time in the past, this time she was right. Ed heard it himself.

It was but a slight move from sitting up to getting up. So up he got.

In full uniform of pajamas, and with a gun which glittered in the subdued reflection of the porch light of a Home avenue resident across the street, he donned his padded slippers and slipped slowly down the stairway. The disturbance was at the front door. He could hear nothing but the beating of his own heart and the echo of the same vital appliance belonging to Mrs. Dicey who had crept to the top of the stairway. He was reaching carefully for the doorknob when there came a loud rap at the door, which sent him back a few feet. If the call were a legitimate one, thought Mr. Dicey, why didn't the caller ring the bell? Just then the bell did ring, and the door was opened slowly and carefully, after Mr Dicey had turned on the porch light.

There stood a young man. "Excuse me," he said, "I couldn't find the door bell at first."

He handed Mr. Dicey a letter. "Special delivery letter," said the young man. "Two cents due." Mr. Dicey signed up for the letter and then went back up stairs for the two cents. He returned, and paid the amount. He opened the letter and read: "Terre Haute, Indiana. Ed. Dicey, 1023 Homo avenue,

"I couldn't find the door bell."

Fort Wayne, Indiana. About three months ago you advertised for a snare drummer. I am unable to take the position." The signature was a strange one.

Ed didn't get to sleep until it was time to get up and of course he didn't get any even then, because how could he if he got up? He was wondering all the time and still is—whether or not someone put up a game on him, and if so, who?

Gold Certificates Turning Up at Leavenworth, Kansas.

Leavenworth, Kas., April 8.—Ten and twenty dollar gold certificates, thought to be a portion of $50,000 stolen by Charles Savage, a negro, from a mail truck at the Union station in Kansas City five years ago, have been found here. The money, amounting to between $250 and $300, was found by negroes who reside in the vicinity of the home of a relative of Savage. The robbery, for which Savage was convicted, took place June 6, 1908. A small pouch containing $50,000 in cash and valuable jewelry, disappeared mysteriously. A few days later the empty sack was found on the outskirts of Kansas City. The money was never recovered. Savage is serving ten years for the robbery.

FATHER FOLLOWS BABE.

Parental Devotion Costs Life for Long Island Man.

New York, April 8.—Hagar Shive died at Whitestone, L. I., yesterday, a victim of parental devotion. Although himself far from being in robust health, Shive early in the winter submitted to an operation for the transfusion of his blood into the veins of his infant son, who was suffering from tuberculosis of the bones. A friend, knowing Shive's delicate state of health, offered to submit to the operation for him.

Shive, however, declared that he willingly would sacrifice his life for his first born and a quart of blood was given to the babe. The child died shortly afterward and Shive went into rapid decline and died. He was 24 years old.

SHRINERS READY FOR CEREMONIAL

Potentate A. F. Hall Has Just Sent Out Official Programs.

EXPECT BIG CROWDS

The official program for the annual spring ceremonial session of Mizpah temple, Ancient Arabic Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine has just been issued by Illustrious Potentate Arthur F. Hall. The ceremonial session this year is to be April 23 and does not follow the day after the Scottish Rite convocation, as has been the usual custom. This is due to the fact that a lot of innovations and new stunts have been scheduled and will require one week's rehearsing and it will be impossible to do this during the convention.

The session will begin at 11 o'clock in the morning with a business meeting and the caravan with its procession of pilgrims will start across the hot sands of the desert toward the shrine of Mizpah promptly at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

The oasis of Fort Wayne always draws a wonderfully large number of nobles from all parts of the state, and the fact that the session has been delayed eight days will in no manner reduce the attendence, according to those who have charge of the entertainment. The floor and stage will be under the exclusive direction of E. H. Merritt, past illustrious potentate.

Every noble who has ever attended a ceremonial banquet looks forward to the feast with eagerness, and the spread to be laid for the forthcoming session promises to be one of the most sumptuous ever devoured. It is being planned by the banquet committee consisting of Emil Keller, E. H. Miller and Fred Eckert. Every noble of Mizpah Temple has been notified that he is to act as a member of the reception committee, and the Arab patrol and Nomad band will also be on hand with their drills and music. Announcement is made that the patrol will have its time free to entertain the nobles with the new drills and some new stunts after the feast is over.

At the special business meeting in the morning of ceremonial day the members will take action upon the resignation of Noble R. Parks White, representative to the imperial council and to elect his successor. Mr. White has been in ill health for some time.

STAYED AS LONG AS HE WAS FED

Mrs. Warren Says John B. Left When Provisions Were Out.

MATTERS IN COURTS

Annie Warren, in a divorce complaint filed against John B. Warren, alleges that she lives on a half acre plot and that she and her son raise chickens, vegetables and fruit enough to last them during the winter, and that as soon as the season's harvest is safely stored, John B. anchors at home and stays as long as the chickens and other provisions last, and that as soon as they are exhausted he hikes.

She also charges that he broke up the dishes, called her bad names, failed to provide and made her work for her own living. He is further charged with ordering his wife and son out of a home that belongs to her. William Freuchtenicht filed the suit.

He Has Two Guns.

Among other things related by Della Trisch in her divorce suit against David L. Trisch, is that he keeps two guns on tap and that she fears he will use one of them in erasing her from his married life. She asks that while her divorce is pending that he be kept from molesting her at 1216 Union street. They lived together from December, 1906, until a few years ago.

She says he has some furniture and an automobile, that he worked but one year since their marriage, and that she has been compelled to provide for herself. Judge B. B. Dreibelbiss filed the suit.

Is Under Advisement.

Judge John W. Eggeman has under advisement the motion for a change of venue from the judge in the Kerr Murray receivership. He will probably appoint a special judge as soon as he has disposed of a case now on trial in his court.

Divorce and the Children.

In the superior court today Nevada Manning obtained a decree of divorce from Mack Manning and was given the custody of their three children.

Criminal Cases Taken Up.

In the circuit court today Joseph Kosinski, charged with stealing gold from a grip at the Wabash depot, was given $1 and costs and thirty days in jail. He had been in jail sixty-seven days waiting for a hearing.

Elijah Davis, who stole a pocketbook and some jewelry from a guest at the Centlivre hotel, drew $1 and costs and thirty days.

Louis Treuchet, charged with stealing cigars from George Eickenberry; George Jaeger, charged with taking a violin belonging to Rosa Burns and pawning it, and William Reed and Guy Walstrom, accused of having entered the home of George F. Null to commit a felony, were waiting hearings late this afternoon.

WILL FIGHT THE MOVE TO ANNEX

Property Owners Do Not Want to Be Taken Into the City.

THE CITY HALL NOTES

For the reason that there are few residences in the district included in the Rosemont and Eureka additions and on the Hamilton heirs' property northwest of the city, thirty-four residents will go before the city council at its meeting tonight to protest against annexation.

An ordinance annexing the property to the city is in the hands of a committee and is due for a report at the meeting tonight. The list of remonstrants contains the names of all but three of the residents interested in the matter.

A resolution carrying an appropriation of $5,000 to employ engineers and start the work of building water defenses for Fort Wayne will be presented to the council tonight and President Louis Schroeder will appoint a committee from the council to act in conjunction with the committee named at a citizens' meeting a short time ago.

Members of the council will table the request for a bond issue of $75,000 for an auditorium for the reason that the recent floods have been so expensive and the prevention measures will cost so much that all the bonding capacity of the city will be needed.

Notes of the City Hall.

All action on the paving of St. Mary's avenue has been rescinded until the property owners can agree upon the width of the pavement.

The committee on track elevation will not report on the Walton avenue grade separation matter at the regular meeting of the council this evening.

PUT IN SIDEWALK.

Excavations Are Being Made at the Fairfield Avenue Crossing.

Excavations are being rushed at the Fairfield avenue crossing of the Wabash road where grades are being separated and a great portion of the work has been done. A temporary walk will be constructed at once on the east side of the excavations.

Just as soon as the board of works has had an opportunity to confer with the Wabash officials about when they want to take up the work of elevating the tracks at Harrison and Taylor streets and Thompson avenue the contracts for the city's portion of the task will be let to the Brooks and Moellering Construction companies which were the only bidders.

PARTY LEADERS ARE INTERESTED

Eagerly Watch the Outcome of Progressive Case at Indianapolis

AS TO COMMISSIONER

Fort Wayne is but one of a number of Indiana cities where municipal elections are to be held this autumn, and where work of organizing for the campaign has been delayed at every turn. Party workers who have attempted to line up their forces for the battle have encountered difficulties in every line of endeavor in political work. The latest difficulty comes from the Indianapolis case, where the progressives' election commissioner has not been recognized by the city clerk who appointed a democrat and a republican. The clerk contends that at the last municipal election the republican party was the majority party and is therefore entitled to an election commissioner along with the democrats.

First in line in the matter of political delay in starting the municipal campaign came the business form of city government bill which was introduced at the last session of the legislature. Political leaders who favored the business plan halted operations until they saw the measure killed, and in the meantime, party activity was given a delay by the bill providing for the re-election of city officials.

Now all the political leaders are eagerly awaiting the outcome of the case at Indianapolis as the progressives have filed a suit to compel the city clerk to appoint a progressive commissioner and withdraw the republican appointee.

The Local Situation.

The progressives and democrats of Fort Wayne have announced their men for appointment as commissioners, but thus far nobody has been named by the republicans. Lee J. Hartzell is the choice of the progressives for the place, and William Freuchtenicht has been named by the democrats. Judge R. W. Skelton, chairman of the republican central committee, said the republicans here will wait until the Indianapolis case is settled before further action is taken in politics.

City Clerk William T. Joffries declares that he had intended calling a meeting of the election commissioners this week, but he will in all probability delay this session until something definite comes from the Indianapolis case. Everybody in Fort Wayne who is interested in politics in Indiana is looking with eagerness toward the outcome of the progressive-republican scrap at the capital city and many declare that it will make a good test case.

Riedmiller Not Candidate.

William Riedmiller, employed at the Centlivre Brewing company, denies that he is a candidate for the democratic nomination for city clerk. It was reported that he had announced his own candidacy. Mr. Riedmiller, who was at one time connected with the city water works department, says that some of his friends have asked him to be a candidate for the nomination, but he will not engage in politics and wishes it understood that he is not a candidate for any office.

The only candidate for the clerkship nomination at this time as a representative of the democratic party, is William G. Overdear, of McClellan street.

HE CUT OFF BEER SUPPLY.

Scheme Brings Aid to Helpless Prisoner in Ice Chest.

Boston, April 8.—Levi, a native of Azores whose last name is a mystery, escaped death from freezing when locked in the ice chest of a downtown hotel yesterday by turning off the entire beer and ale supply of the establishment.

Levi went into the ice chest on an errand when someone accidentally locked the big door behind him. He shouted and pounded in vain for help, when he thought of turning off the beer and ale supply as a means of attracting attention. The results were immediate and excited investigators found Levi nearly frozen.

ENUMERATORS TO START WORK SOON

Correct and Thorough Count of School Children to Be Made.

MEANS A GREAT DEAL

School enumerators named Monday by J. N. Study, superintendent of the Fort Wayne schools, met in his office last night and were given supplies for conducting the work and were also instructed in the detail of securing a complete enumeration. The enumerators and their wards are as follows:

First, Walter Jerjenski and Harry Pientia; Second, William Rathert; Third, Milton Weber; Fourth, Mrs. Helen Clark; Fifth, Charles Woebbeking; Sixth, H. L. Fisher and John Loth; Seventh, William Engle; Eighth, William Schmidt; Tenth, Wallace Wyneken and Frank Bossleman.

The amount of the state school fund that Fort Wayne will receive for the maintenance of its schools is based wholly upon the number of inhabitants between the age of six and twenty-one years, therefore it is very important that a complete enumeration be secured. The law allows approximately $4 for every child, and one can see what it will mean if parents neglect or refuse to correctly give the enumerators the number of children.

Some parents think that they should not report those who are over the compulsory school age, or those who are working. It is the intent of the law, however, that all under the age of twenty-one and over the age of six years be enumerated. A fine of $5 for a parent or guardian who does not give in the names of all children in his care or who makes false statements respecting their ages, is provided by the law. The enumerators will start their work next Thursday, according to the present arrangements.

Country Club Committees Are Getting Ready for the Opening.

CLEAN UP THE HOUSE

All the committees representing the Fort Wayne Country club are this week beginning their plans for the coming season and last night a meeting of the sports and pastimes committee was held with Chairman W. A. Diffenderfer at which time the members mapped out a portion of the play events for the summer and fall. The complete program is not ready at this time, but those who have been informed concerning some of the numbers declare the season will be pleasurable and exciting. Members of the sports and pastimes committee are W. A. Diffenderfer, chairman; Charles S. Bond, Ralph Sperry and George Waldschmidt.

Dan B. Ninde, chairman of the house committee, is making an effort to get in touch with the members of his committee and a meeting will be held some night this week.

Refugees Have Gone.

The twenty-two flood refugees who were housed and fed at the Country Club during the high water have all returned to their homes. Manager Emil Keller threw open the large club house to the flood refugees and provided them with food, clothing and shelter.

The club is now undergoing a course of cleansing in anticipation of an early opening of the season.

TORITOR DEEP CURVE LENSES MADE BY ROGERS

You Are Not Old at Forty

Improperly fitted glasses; use of two pairs when one is better; unsightly "old-appearing," pasted bifocal lenses; "ducking" and "peering" over the edges of your "reading" glasses; trying to do without glasses—all make you look old and prove that—

You Need Glasses

Not any old kind, but the kind that will overcome all these earmarks of age and make you look forty years YOUNG and NOT sixty years OLD. The only right kind for you are—

Toritor Kryptoks

(Deep curve, double vision lenses, single in appearance.)

They do all that two pairs can do and do it better. No cracks to collect dirt and dust, no cement to loosen and fog the vision, no costly wafers of thin glass to slip, fall off and break as in ordinary bifocal lenses. Kryptoks, as we make and and fit them, make you look young and see well.

My Corns Don't Hurt a Bit

Tired, Smelly, Sweaty Feet, Corns, Calluses and Bunions Cured by TIZ.

Send at Once for Free Trial Package.

Say good-bye to your corns the very last time you use TIZ. You will never know you have a corn, bunion or callus, or sweaty, tired, swollen, aching feet any more. It's just wonderful the way the pain vanishes. Rub the corn—hammer it with your fist if you wish—no more pain after TIZ. Doesn't that sound good to you? Doesn't it? Then read this:

"The corns on either of my toes were as large as the tablets you make to cure them. Today there is no sign of corns on either foot and no soreness. It's an up-to-date Godsend."—Sam A. Hoover, Progress, N. C.

Just use TIZ. It's not like anything else for the purpose you ever heard of. It's the only foot remedy ever made which acts on the principle of drawing out all the poisonous exudations which cause sore feet. Powders and other remedies merely clog up the pores. TIZ cleans them out and keeps them clean. It works right off. You will feel better the very first time it's used. Use it a week and you can forget you ever had sore feet. There are a good many counterfeits of TIZ now being made by manufacturers who think they can make a little money by fooling people once. Don't fall a victim. You'll have to get TIZ afterwards if they know it, and you might as well get it the first time and save the money counterfeits. TIZ is for sale at all drug stores, department and general stores, at 25 cents per box, or direct, if you wish. Money back if TIZ doesn't do all we say. For a free trial package write today to Walter Luther Dodge & Co., Chicago, Ill.

CHURCH DEDICATED FREE FROM DEBT

The New Edifice of the United Brethren Congregation at Waterloo, Indiana.

Waterloo, Ind., April 8. The new temple of worship of the First Church of the United Brethren in Christ was dedicated Sunday with interesting and appropriate services, held at 11 o'clock in the forenoon and at 7:30 in the evening. The dedication proper was at the evening service. This was conducted by Rev. W. R. Funk, of Dayton, O., the head of the United Brethren Publishing house. Services were also held in the afternoon, at which short addresses were made by a number of visiting ministers, some of whom were former pastors of the church.

In its erection the new church edifice has cost $14,000. It is modern in all its details and the auditorium has a seating capacity of 600. The entire indebtedness was lifted by pledges before the dedication took place. Of this amount $7,000 was raised at the services Sunday. The subscription of the Ladies' Aid society was $1,500.

The old church building which stood on the site of the new edifice was built fifty years ago and it was a year ago when it was torn down for the erection of the new building. In the latter work the contractors met with difficulties. On March 21st last the roof was blown off by a cyclone and later the frescoers were delayed in their work by a fire.

All the services of the day were largely attended. The two sermons of Dr. Funk, in the forenoon and evening, were able discourses.

DAMAGED TWENTY BRIDGES.

Bryan, O., April 8.—According to estimates prepared by Surveyor Walter H. Davis, the high waters from the Tiffin and St. Joseph rivers and small creeks caused damage to bridges, culverts and road grades to the extent of over $10,000 in Williams county. Over twenty bridges, culverts and grades were damaged in various sections of the county and the majority of these structures are still impassible.

The School Enumeration

Within a few days enumerators will begin the annual count of persons of school age in Fort Wayne. It is of the utmost importance that every person between the ages of 6 and 21 years be listed, for upon this enumeration depends the extent to which Fort Wayne will share in the state school funds Despite the fact that the enumeration is an annual affair and that it has been taken each year since the present school system went into effect, enumerators still find occasional instances in which a misapprehension of the law not only gives them much additional trouble, but operates against a complete count. There are those who assume that the child not actually in school should not be listed with the enumerator. Still others labor under the delusion that a failure to list children will in some manner operate to lessen their personal taxes for school purposes. As a matter of fact, precisely the opposite condition is true. Every dollar of state school revenue received by Fort Wayne lowers by just that sum the total necessary to be raised by local taxation for the support of schools. Division of its school revenues by the state is made entirely upon the basis of the certified returns of the enumerators and the parent or guardian who refuses or neglects to list any child of school age, whether he be in actual attendance upon school or not, deprives the city of some portion of the state school revenue to which it is justly entitled and adds to the tax burden of himself and his neighbor by thus increasing the balance which must be raised by local taxes. This is placing the matter on a definite dollars and cents basis which is quite apart from the element of civic pride which Fort Wayne has in maintaining its position as the third city in the state, and in securing representation on the state board of education, both of which are likely to be sacrificed by an incomplete count. School authorities will insist that the work of their enumerators be thorough, painstaking and accurate. Let every citizen assist them by making returns promptly and completely when the enumerator reaches the home.

Tariff Revision Downward

Now that the new democratic tariff revision bill in which so widespread a public interest has been manifested, has been introduced into congress, we believe it will be instantly acclaimed as an honest attempt at fulfillment of party pledges. Even a casual examination will make it apparent that it purposes real revision downward, and that it is open to no such criticism for a breaking of faith with the people as was the Payne-Aldrich tariff measure of four years ago. If there be those who feared that by some chance reactionary forces might obtain foothold in the framing of the bill sufficient to thwart the announced purposes of democracy, the reported measure ought to effectually banish distrust. There has been a terrific slashing of the tariff duties upon articles of food, clothing and the necessaries of life, and in recouping revenue losses in this direction by placing the burden of tax upon incomes able to bear it, the arrangement would seem to be the most equitable that could be devised from the popular viewpoint. It is not to be supposed that the measure will escape criticism, and much of it is likely to be bitter and vindictive. The bill, however, assuredly provides for a revision downward in accordance with the desire of the people expressed at the polls in November.

WORKING FOR LOVE.

(Pittsburg Dispatch.)

Would a man labor for another purely for the love of a girl is the problem that has been taken under advisement by a Boston court. Michael Creatti, a cobbler, sued Peter Lateri for $180 for cobbling in the defendant's shop nights and Saturdays from August to November of last year at the average wage of 40 cents an hour. Lateri set up the defense that Michael worked for him all these nights purely out of love for Miss Muteri, a young woman who had come to his home from Italy. He testified that Michael tried to win the girl, and to facilitate his suit wished to ingratiate himself with the defendant, her brother-in-law, by helping him in the evenings in his cobbler shop, and incidentally having opportunity to be near the object of his affection. The plaintiff says the idea is ridiculous, that he worked for 40 cents an hour, which he has failed to collect.

The court asked counsel for the defendant if he thought any man would labor like that for love of a girl. "Yes, I think a man would," said the gallant counsel, and the court doubtingly took the matter under advisement.

Had the judge and counsel been Biblical students they might have found a precedent in Genesis, where it is recorded that Jacob worked several years for Rachael, and, receiving Reah instead, worked yet seven years more for Rachael and counted it no more than a few days for the love he had of her. But what we would like to know is whether Michael won the girl, and if he did not, that might have a very enlightening bearing on the case at issue. He might have been perfectly willing to work for love if there was a chance of winning it, but if his love's labor was lost, 40 cents an hour would make very acceptable salvage.

CABINET GEOGRAPHY.

(Washington Post.)

Of the 313 individuals who have been appointed to the cabinet since the foundation of the government, almost half have come from the state of New York (which leads with 39), Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Virginia. There are 13 states, 11 of them west of the Mississippi river, which have not had a member of the cabinet since Washington became president in 1789. The other two are Rhode Island and Florida, the trans-Mississippi states thus neglected being Arkansas, Wyoming, Washington, the two Dakotas, Montana, Oregon, Nevada, Utah, New Mexico and Arizona—the two last named, of course, not having been states long enough to secure such distinction. Of the western states that have been honored, Missouri holds the record with nine. Of the 313 cabinet members in the past 124 years only 32 have been from west of the Mississippi. But President Wilson has broken two rather interesting precedents in the composition of his cabinet. The six great states of the upper Mississippi valley have been ignored for the first time since the organization of the government. But even more remarkable is the fact that not a single New England state has a representative in the cabinet. New England has furnished dozens of the 313 cabinet ministers of the past. Massachusetts alone providing 55, the second largest number. Only once before has New England been completely without a place at the council tables of the nation, and that was almost 90 years ago. The younger Adams, though a New Englander himself, did not go to his own section of the country for any of his advisers.

CURBING THE FLOOD.

(Grand Rapids News.)

On account of the recent floods in West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, Illinois and other states along the great Mississippi river system, the deliberations of the drainage congress next week at St. Louis take on special significance. The result of these deliberations undoubtedly will be a bill, which may be presented at the special session of congress, which will outline the gigantic task of protecting the people against future floods.

The whole matter appears to be a plain engineering problem. This country, which has all but completed the Panama canal, it would appear, should be able to carry out plans which will protect the millions living in our great river valleys. This work, in the long run, is as important as the Panama canal. And American engineering skill surely ought to be equal to the task.

The whole situation is splendidly summarized by Edmund T. Perkins, president of the American Reclamation federation, who also is chairman of the executive committee of the National Drainage congress. He is an engineer of wide experience. This is how Mr. Perkins puts the whole problem:

"We do not contend that we can change natural laws, but we declare these frightful flood losses come as the result of violating or ignoring natural laws. Fortunately the world—or most of it—has outgrown the superstition that such calamities are the visitation of divine wrath.

"The American people have tried to ignore the natural law that a certain volume of water requires a certain floodway with a certain fall. In developing our country we have proceeded blindly upon the supposition that we could turn swamps, marshes and forests into farms, roads, towns and cities without considering what disposition to make of the surplus flood water which formerly used these areas as reservoirs.

"We have not provided other artificial reservoirs to take the place of the old storage places. Worse than all, we have decided calmly that we can increase largely the volume of water to be taken care of in flood seasons and keep the increased flow within the same floodway. We have not increased the run-off capacity of the drainage channels—the rivers and streams.

"In the solution of this problem it seems to me every aid of engineering science must be brought into play; we will need artificial reservoirs, reforestation, stronger levees, bank revetment, deeper channels, and, probably more important than all, we must have wider drainage channels or floodways."

SOOTHES AND HEALS

Hyomei Medicates the Air You Breathe and Gives Quick Relief to Catarrhal Troubles.

Be wise in time and use Hyomei at the first warning of catarrhal troubles.

Do not let the disease extend along the delicate mucous membrance, gradually going from the nose to the throat, thence into the bronchial tubes, and then downward until the lungs are reached and you are in danger of consumption.

Hyomei will relieve all curable forms and stages of catarrh. It is so uniformly successful in this common yet dangerous disease that it is always sold on money back if not benefited plan.

There is no other treatment for catarrh that is like Hyomei or just as good. None can take its place, none give such quick and sure relief and at so little cost. Its medication is breathed through a pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, thus reaching the most remote cells of the air passages, killing the catarrhal germs and soothing and healing the irritated mucous membrane.

Begin the use of Hyomei today and you will soon find that the offensive breath, the droppings into the throat, the discharge from the nose, sniffling and all other symptoms of catarrh are overcome. The complete outfit costs but $1.00. Extra bottles of liquid, if later needed, 50 cents at Meyer Bros. Co. and druggists everywhere.

Right-Angle-Confluence of Rivers Caused Great Damage, Says Anselm Fuelber

THE FLOOD PROBLEM.

This is the fifth of a series of articles from engineers and laymen dealing with a solution of the problem of future flood prevention. The Sentinel desires to present the matter in its many-sided phases, in order that there may be as full an understanding as possible, but does not, necessarily endorse the various solutions of the difficulty which may be presented by its contributors. Such diagrams and illustration as accompany these articles are prepared under the direction of the writer of the contribution.

An illustrated article by Secretary C. J. Steiss, of the Board of Park Commissioners, will appear tomorrow.

By ANSELM FUELBER.

To the Editor of The Sentinel: Complying with your request concerning the solution of the problem of preventing the future flooding of the rivers, I say that this important question can be solved only by practical engineers. As I am not an expert, I do not even attempt such responsible work. Local changes and improvements may bring us some relief, but will not be a safe and complete remedy. Those changes have to extend from here to the mouth of the Maumee river at Toledo.

In Fort Wayne, in my opinion, the greatest and most serious obstruction of the river bed is at the junction of the three rivers, just north of the Columbia street bridge, caused by the artificial change of the current of the St. Mary's river.

Former Conditions.

Thirty or more years ago, when the streams took their own natural course, the situation at that point was entirely different from now. All of the territory north and east of the Nickel Plate tracks, extending from Spy Run avenue to Main street, was 25 to 30 feet lower than it is now, and it formed a part of the river bed. At the low water stand we had here quite an area of swamp land, but whenever a heavy rain came the main current of the stream turned in that direction. Lakeside, with the "apple orchard" at the corner of Main street east of the river, was low farm land subject to frequent overflows, thus forming a sort of safety basin for floods. The three rivers were joined in the shape of a "Y" and the combined force of the St. Mary's and St. Joseph caused a greater swiftness of the current of the Maumee. The bridge connecting with Lakeside was formerly at the foot of East Main street.

Reversed River Courses.

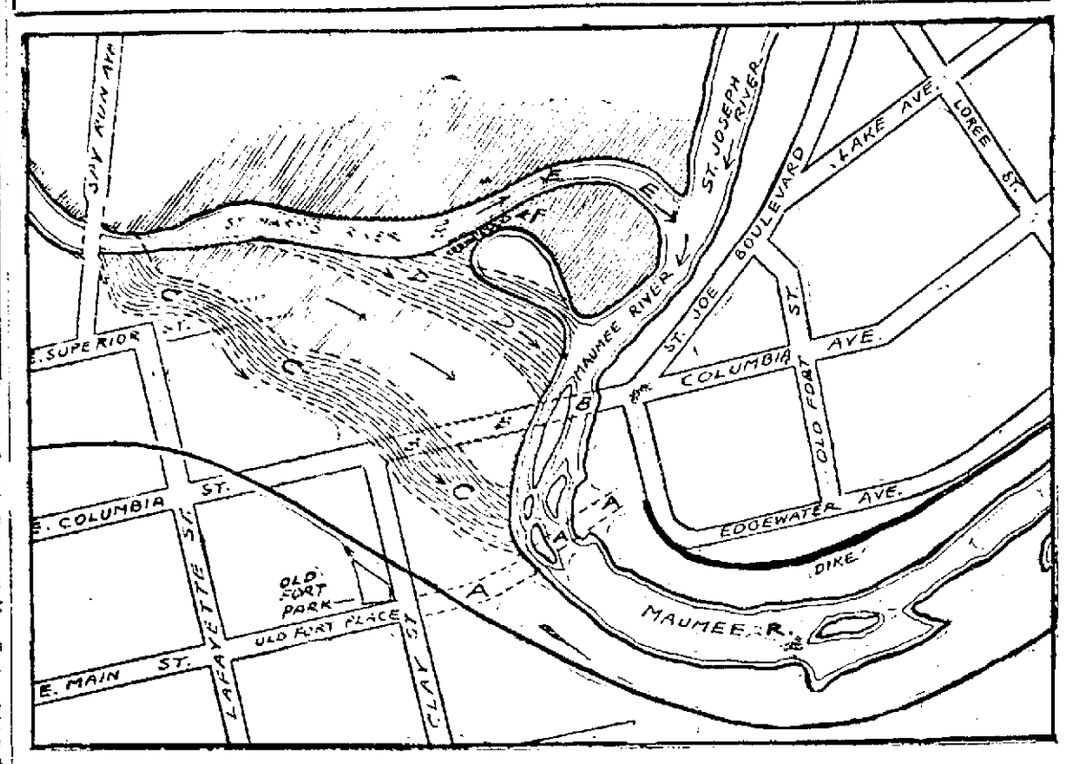

These conditions have been completely changed. The river bed of the St. Mary's was gradually encroached upon by filling up the southwest bank, but the most serious obstruction was created by extending East Columbia street beyond the Nickel Plate tracks to the present river bed; thus a substantial wall or dam 25 to 30 feet high was placed against the free flow of the St. Mary's river, forcing at the same time the junction of the two rivers farther to the north. The extension of Columbia street as described left two deep holes, one on either side of the street, between the Nickel Plate tracks and the present bridge. A part of this low ground can still be seen at the site of the Foster factory building, but it is being filled gradually with cinders and other dumping material.

A further step in the wrong direction was taken by driving a row of piles along the south bank of the St. Mary's river, north of the Foster factory grounds, and forcing the channel of the river further north to its present location. The consequence is that the currents of the two rivers meet at right angles like the letter "T." One current retards the other in its course; causing in time of flood the rise of the waters in both rivers at that point. This dangerous condition is aggravated by the Columbia street dam on the south and by the Lakeside dam on the east, thus preventing an expansion of the waters in both directions. By this unnatural junction the weaker stream of the St. Joseph river is retarded and the water is gradually forced back in that channel. This causes the flooding of the Spy Run district, although the river bed of the St. Joseph is wide enough and deep enough to take care of all the water that comes from the north. Even the new Tennessee avenue bridge had little or nothing to do with the overflow. The obstruction at the junction of the rivers also had a great influence on the rise in the St. Mary's river throughout the city and is partly responsible for the high water in Bloomingdale and Nebraska. In connection herewith, it may be mentioned that the levee or dike constructed on the north bank of the Maumee in Lakeside further contracted the channel of the river. We have practically bottled up the three rivers at a point where the greatest expansion is necessary and as nature had planned.

I do not believe that any of the bridges, either old or new, had very much to do with the flood, or overflow, as the channels under the bridges are wider than the river bed in general. Therefore, I can not join in the proposition of Mr. Charles McCulloch to blow up the Tennessee avenue and Coombs street bridges with dynamite without first making a thorough investigation. I rather believe that other means can be found to remedy any evil caused by the bridges.

In regard to removing the obstruction at the junction of the three rivers I have no proposition to make, because I am not an engineer. I think it is the duty of our city administration and the county commissioners to have the flood situation investigated by experts who are also competent to propose the proper remedies.

MAP ILLUSTRATING THE ARTICLE BY MR. FUELBER.

THE MAP is presented to illustrate the contention of Mr. Fuelber that one of the greatest causes of the recent flood was the backing up of the water in the St. Mary's and St. Joseph rivers from the point of their confluence, due to the unnautral obstructions which compel the current of the St. Mary's river to meet the current of the St. Joseph at right angles. The map includes the location of the present-day streets. The entire shaded portion indicates the area of present-day ground which was under water at all times twenty-five of thirty years ago. (AA) Location of former East Main street bridge connecting East Main street (Old Fort Place) with "the old apple orchard" (now Lakeside). (B B) Columbia street bridge connecting Lakeside with the extended portion of East Columbia street which was elevated above the surrounding low territory at the time of the construction of the present bridge. (C C) The natural course of the St. Mary's river during high-water periods before the construction of the present Columbia street bridge. (D D) The course of the St. Mary's river in high-water times, after the construction of the Columbia street bridge. (E E) Present narrowed low water course of the St. Mary's river due to filling in and recent driving of piling at (F).

HOW WATER BACKS UP.

In connection with the article by Mr. Fuelber, it may be of interest to state that the Sentinel has learned from an examination of Civil Engineer Grosvenor's river survey that the surface of the Maumee river during the worst of the recent flood was two feet lower at the Columbia street bridge than was the St. Mary's at Spy Run bridge. It happens that Mr. Grosvenor, while surveying the rivers, selected as one of his points the door sill of the Ray and Barva barn, West Superior street and Spy Run avenue. During the flood, the water reached this door-sill and was on a level with the water at the Spy Run bridge. The water at this point measured 93.2 above the Maumee river gauge line, while, at the Columbia street gauge the measurement was 91.1 above the same base line. It is claimed that the congestion backed up the St. Mary's to a depth two feet greater than it would have been, and that the influence of this congestion was felt far down the river as it coursed through the western part of the city.

AS MARSE HENRY VIEWS PROSPECT

Col. Watterson Hopeful But Not Enthusiastic Over Outlook.

WILSON AND BRYAN

Louisville, April 8.—In a signed editorial in the Louisville Courier-Journal Col. Henry Watterson expresses his views frankly regarding the new administration. His opinions are of especial interest not only because of his great influence in the democratic party, but because of his break with Mr. Wilson before the Baltimore convention. The editorial, which is dated at Naples-on-the Gulf, Fla., is very long. Part of it follows:

Down by the sad sea waves—actually under the bamboo tree—amid rose gardens and orange groves, I have been perusing "Three Weeks," not the vulgar skit of that vile woman, but the first installment of the drama of the Wilson administration. I have read over again the president's inaugural speech. I shall not say it nay; but, when I reflect how impeachments more deep sounding and far reaching have fallen upon closed hearts and deaf ears, I may be forgiven if my optimism fails to answer its call upon my faith.

This, however, is not to discredit its phraseology, which ranks high among essays of the kind, or its purpose whose patriotism and philanthropy admit of no dispute.

Seeing the Show.

Woodrow Wilson and William Jennings Bryan might be likened to two beaming benevolent boys, given a dollar each to go and see the show. They are bidden to keep together. The money is declared for common use. Good intentions and self confidence animate both. The weather is fair, the walking easy. If they hear the distant roar of the lions, the howling of the wolves and the growling of the tigers, it is to them the rather music than warning. With the bravery of youth and the joy of possession, they reck not the dangers ahead. They think they have, and, as it were, they have the whole world in a sling.

Woodrow Wilson, born in a manse, grew up to pink teas and fairly tales, a child of books and destiny. William Jennings Bryan, likewise a predestinarian, has dwelt in a peachblow vase a thousand leagues beyond the moon. Yet has he been in some sort a victim of circumstance, for thrice he has fallen

From morn to noon,
From noon to dewy eve,
A summer's day——

out of a balloon, as it were, though not like Lucifer, "never to hope again." An ill mated twain for team work, the two of them; for one is dark and t'other is fair, and this is a game where it is each for himself and the devil take the hindmost!

* * * * * * *

But good luck to you, lads, both of you! May you ride the tempest, clear the icebergs, steel safe through the fogs off the banks. But don't go upon the bridge together. Take a life raft aboard Take two life rafts!

There is the tariff now. Lively old iceberg, the tariff! Yet no "sum" in single rule of three should be simpler, no problem of government easier of solution. And it would have been solved long ago except that, instead of an agent for raising revenue, it became a scheme for the promotion of private fortune.

When David A. Wells began the movement for revenue reform in 1869 he was a republican and his backers were republicans. The word among the progressives of that day was "We have freed the nigger and now we will free the trade." Wells was a Yankee of the Yankees. He had the interest of the manufacturers of New England at heart. I became one of the early members of the Cobden club. Two of my American colleagues were William R. Allison and James A. Garfield.

Sectionalism Blocked the Way.

Our English clubmates had been to a man on the side of the Union during the war of sections. Seeing what free trade had done for England, and being friends, not enemies of the United States, they were wholly disinterested in wanting us to adopt a liberal trade policy, actual free trade impossible under our peculiar system. Wells believed, and I believed with him, that by making way with the Chinese walls of higs protection we could meet and beat our rivals in the natural markets and recover the markets that geographically belonged to us.

Except for the muddle made by the Greeley fiasco of 1872 and the rampant sectionalism that swallowed all else, the republican party would have divided upon the tariff long ago.

At the outset, with only 500 millions to be raised, two-thirds yielded by the internal duties on spirits and tobacco, and a fair income tax, left so little to be got through the custom houses that we could have easily levied a purely revenue tariff. But, under the protective system, surplus begat extravagance, until now we must collect 1,000 millions to meet the expenses of government.

Revenue Tariff Impossible.

This makes a simple scale of duties adapted solely for revenue impossible, and forces us to make a tariff which in the nature of the case will carry all the protection any reasonable manufacturer ought to ask, or expect.

Mr. Underwood is not a wild eyed radical. He is not a free trader. He is wholly competent to consider every section and every interest. He is on to his job of making a tariff which will yield six hundred millions of revenue. Theories are out of the question.

I take it that Mr. Bryan will be required to stick to the state department and to leave congress alone. Under the lead of Clark and Underwood in the house, of Kern in the senate, Wilson at the other end of the avenue, we shall get a reasonable measure of tariff reduction and reform. And, with the graft taken out of the revenue laws, the duties brought to something like fair proportions, we shall probably hear no more of free trade and the gospel of protection for a long time to come.

* * * * * * *

We are at the gateway of a new dispensation. It is to the country, no less than to the democratic party, a new departure. Woodrow Wilson is president of the United States, and, as Uncle Joe Cannon observed the other day, "he is my president."

At the outset I was sincerely for his nomination and later along with equal sincerity I opposed his nomination. The change of attitude, which subjected me at the time to animadversion, and continues to subject all I have to say to misreport and misconstruction, came about most unexpectedly. Mainly a private affair, it involved character. At a pivotal moment the screen fell away from the scholar and thinker, revealing to my eyes quite another personality, call it "the ground floor"—to help, and No act, or word, offensive to me, had passed; quarrel, if quarrel there was, in no way related to me; I stood on the ground—in business I believe they since saints scarcely less than sinners require money, had helped to a considerable amount.

His Estimate of Wilson.

I do Mr. Wilson the justice to believe that when he publicly denied this and raised a flat issue of veracity between us, he did not know that the proof was in my possession. He may indeed have been ignorant of the facts. This apart, his denial left no sting.

During the period of a certain intimacy which arose between us I saw nothing which reflected upon his personal integrity, or his public purposes, much to establish his intellectual superiority. Touching my part of the transaction, his manager did me gross injustice, but after the event I bear no malice. According to the standards and canons which appear to prevail in the political life of the period, there was no reason why I should have made the cause of anybody my own and got out of the Wilson band wagon to trudge it afoot with Champ Clark. Nor was that which impelled me altogether sentimentality and resentment.

Democracy was seeking a leader. It seemed to me we wanted a man of heart as well as of head—a hearty man—one who would not repeat the unhappy experience we had with Grover Cleveland. For all his abilities and accomplishments, Woodrow Wilson—newly revealed—was not such a leader; could not be looked to to make common cause, to work in harness and, given to choose between the learning and genius of isolation and the ruder clay of good sense and good feeling—I thought the party would fare better with a weather-beaten old sea dog at the helm than with an educated but inexperienced academician, though he stood at the head of his class.

Fate ruled otherwise and fate has the best of it. Woodrow Wilson, the scholar, the thinker, is president of the United States. His elevation is as strange as that of Casimir Perier, the very fine gentleman once made president of the bourgeoise republic of France. To find in the head of a great university, a head of the state makes a kind of credit for democracy. Abroad it looks well and sounds well.

The President a Patriot.

That the chief magistrate thus chosen is a man of patriotic and upright intention I have no reason to doubt. He possesses a living sense of the work to be done; full and acute knowledge of the political situation; at once a practical and philosophic conception of the needs of the country and the time. In the raising of the standards of our public life and the lowering of the cost, both of government and groceries, he has the right pig by the ear. He did wonders during the two years he was governor of New Jersey. He may do wonders during the four years that he is to be president of the United States.

His inaugural is promising. His cabinet has been intelligently chosen. I do not believe he is any more misled by Mr. Bryan's political and economic vagaries than I am. I have hope, not without faith, in his star, in his abilities and courage. Of ill will not a particle. Conceiving the route he will have to travel, and the obstacles that will block the way, it is my wish to stand by him and fight for him, precisely as if I sat with him in glory on the driver's seat instead of struggling along through the mud with the hind wheel.

This does not mean, either, that I want to curry favor, or that I have a knife up my sleeve, and my newspaper critics only discredit themselves and our profession when they say so. It is possible to dislike the person but to trust the judgment of one man, and to like the person and distrust the judgment of another man. Something akin to this is my case with respect to Mr. Wilson and Mr. Bryan.

LECTURES CLOSE THIS WEEK.

Mrs. Louise Parks-Richards Gives Two Drawingroom Talks.

At the home of Mrs. O. N. Guildin, Mrs. Louise Parks Richards gave her lecture on "Lifting of the Turkish Veil" this afternoon at 3 o'clock. The next and last of these talks by Mrs. Richards will be on Thursday evening, April 10, at 8 o'clock, at the home of A. Budd Van Sweringen. Mrs. Richards has disposed of a number of her books on Oberammergau. Mrs. Richards wrote the book after living many years in the little town and learning to know the actor-people familiarly. The book is a sketch of the play and the people and is more than interesting as its style is sympathetic and clear and the story as related one that displays an intimacy and understanding no mere traveler to the place or witness of the Passion play could possibly attain.

Story of "The Cross of Fire"

It is a well known fact in musical history that many a noble bit of writing in the operatic and oratorio forms has been dragged down to oblivion by the shortcomings of the story which it clothes. In fact a composer is fortunate who can obtain worthy subjects for the creatures of his brain and a noteworthy example of the blend of story and setting that makes for nobility in a work is that of the Cross of Fire which will be sung on Friday night at the Majestic by a large mixed chorus under Apollo club direction.

The plot, if such it may be called, is based upon an incident in Scott's Lady of the Lake and has inspired Max Bruch the eminent composer, to some of his most dramatic choruses and liveliest melodies in a setting of Scotch folk song.

The chief characters are Norman A. Young, Highlander, and his bride, Mary, and the opening number discloses them sailing across a lake accompanied by warriors and dames to celebrate their marriage at a neighboring mountain chapel. The second chorus is the wedding anthem within the church and though brief, is a beautiful bit of sustained choral writing.

Just as the ceremony is about to begin, Anfus, a messenger bursts in, announces that war has broken out and hands over to Norman the Cross of Fire as a signal of war, with the command that he carry it on.

Norman, brokenheartedly takes leave of his bride and rushes away with his Cross of Fire in his hands. The men seize their arms and hasten to the rendezvous, while the women surround Mary, speaking words of comfort. The next scene describes Norman on his heroic journey through the wild country. Following a massively constructed chorus comes a lovely Ave Maria sung by Mary which alone is enough to bring fame to the composer.

An inspiring war song shows Norman at the head of his Highlanders who are roused to a high pitch of emotion by the ancient battle cry, "Clan Alpine!"

In the finale, Mary and her women stand on a hill from which they watch the changing phases of the battle so evenly fought.

Fear and dismay is spread by the announcement that Norman has fallen and the battle is lost, but soon sounds of victory are heard and the joyous chorus of the victors celebrate the happy reunion of the lovers.

Every effort has been made to give this brilliant work an adequate production and the Apollo club has secured soloists of national reputation.

The sale of seats which began this morning indicates a very large audience but many good seats are obtainable, particularly in the balcony which is really the best place to hear a concert of this character.

IT'S THE WOMAN WHO WORRIES WHO AGES RAPIDLY, SAYS BILLIE BURKE.

BY BILLIE BURKE.

We are all looking for the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow. The pot of gold that is offered by correct and common sense beautifying is clearness of complexion and longer life, with incidentally our intellects brightened and disposition improved. Are these not worth striving for?

Beauty of form and face and mental gifts are all treasures God given, and we are responsible for the use thereof. No matter what our point of view is of the Great Beyond, we all agree that our one body is all we shall have here, and yet how we use it? One would think it could be replaced at a bargain counter for ninety-nine cents, marked down from one forty-five.

Are you improving your body or bringing it down by misuse?

Most of us are born with perfect forms and feature of face, but by abuse and ignorance we lose these precious gifts.

The woman who over-indulges her appetite—not the natural appetite, as nature is ever rational, but the cultivated appetite—permits her form to develop unsightly lines.

Circulation of the blood is the keynote of life which will unlock the door to eternal youth. So the first step to consider is how to improve.

There is such a thing as standing still. Life is perpetual motion. So let us move onward and upward, not backward.

In the past, old age—or, I should say, advancing years—meant indulging one's likes and dislikes and making the whole family and the world at large conform to them as much as one's influence would permit.

Result: A wrinkled, shriveled appearance, which made a woman look years older than she was.

In this day of illumination and progression, advancing years mean a rounding out of ideas and character, living and letting others live, endeavoring to profit by the experience of others, realizing that in the natural course of events one has no time for serious mistakes.

Result: Cheerfulness and a more youthful expression and carriage.

Bear in mind the great fact, acknowledged by all, that crankiness and trying to make everybody else see from one's own point of view has for long ages heralded the advance of years and one will hesitate to wave a flag with the date of one's birth thereon.

Thank goodness, telling one's age has gone out of fashion and the world is beginning to accept us at our face value.

Common-sense beautifying is making the wise woman look ten to twenty years younger, even in daylight.

Above all else, don't worry. Mental worry kills and destroys physical labor unless one set of muscles is used to the exclusion of others, will hurt no one.

When we are worried our blood seethes and teems and burns up the fuel of the body that should prolong life.

Anger degenerates fermentation and poisons are thrown through the system that destroy and tear down.

Begin now to look upon life and living through tolerant eyes and you will soon find that, however hard you work, you will not look ld r feel old if you do not worry.

AT THE MAJESTIC.

"One Day," Dramatic Sensation, at the Majestic Saturday.

Ever since the world began, and as long as it revolves, it is the destiny of all mankind at some period of their existence, to experience the magic touch of love. No story was ever written, no play ever produced, in which love was not the principal theme, and central point of action. In the forthcoming production at the Majestic next Saturday matinee and night of "One Day," a brilliant and remarkable dramatization of Miss Elinor Glyn's fascinating romance of the same name, by Miss Cecil Spooner, lovers of plays of this nature will witness a performance that will strongly appeal to them. "One Day," which is a direct sequel to Miss Glyn's novel "Three Weeks," it is claimed, possesses the most intense, absorbing and yet human story yet given either on the stage or in book form. Miss Spooner's dramatization follows the book closely, losing no point of interest, character or episode; in fact, it may be said that this clever little artist's deft construction into play form has immeasurably strengthened this wonderful novel in numerous respects. Readers of fiction, and followers of important stage events, well remember the deep interest aroused and the sensation created by "Three Weeks." That has not only been eclipsed by the record already made by "One Day" wherever yet produced. The principal character "Opal," will be played by Marion Hutchins, while the next in importance, "Paul," the young crown prince, will be assumed by Robert Brister. The entire cast has been carefully selected and the list includes only the names of recognized artists. Scenically and electrically the entire production will be a most imposing one, the positive limit in stageland splendor.

AT THE TEMPLE

Pay your money and take your choice of favorites from the Temple vaudeville this week and you'll be pleased for there are six acts, no one of which is dull or uninteresting while the entire bill presents enough variety for two evenings of entertainment instead of one. Take Sam Chip and Mary Marble, for instance. They are two well known favorites and they have a setting of a Holland scene with gardens of tulips, the customary windmill and other bits of scenery that is remarkably beautiful. Indeed the audiences begin applause when the curtain goes up instead of waiting for it to fall. Miss Marble is as graceful as ever and Mr. Chip dances and tumbles and sings just as easily and well as though it were his first season out. Their act is extremely pretty.

The other big act of the bill is the Six Nathaniels. They are great acrobats and they are wonderfully entertaining, seeming a little faster, a little more astonishing and a little more agile than anybody else. Two other men, Frawley and Hunt, present an acrobatic stunt that is sensational in character. They are very pleasing and one acts the clown just enough to relieve the breath holding of the audience.

The big laugh of the six acts is the absurdity of Williams and Wolfus. Mr. Williams certainly has something new. He is one of the natural comedians who is never like anyone else and if anyone else tries his stunts, it falls flat. Incidentally he can play the piano well enough to win admiration by his execution of a Liszt rhapsody. Everyone who sees the act will want to see it twice. His originality is its great charm.

The Howard Brothers in an astonishing "flying" banjo act and Smith and Campbell in a string of nonsense are two numbers who find plenty of admirers, as they should, for their work is quick and entertaining.

The run of film pictures is unusually long and very interesting this week and Mr. Dicey has a fine line of musical selections for the orchestra.

AT THE EMPRESS

In the front portion of every program at the Empress theater, included among other articles of advice to the audience, is a sentence saying: "Don't be afraid to laugh if you find a point that pleases you." Those who have witnessed the bill at the Empress this week evidently find it pleasing for the performance calls out one continuous roar of laughter from the time the colored motion pictures show how two young lovers succeed in escaping the wrath of an angry parent, until the unridable donkey in John White's Animal Circus kicks the two colored attendants almost over the scenery and across the footlights.

The Empress bill this week is almost wholly composed of comedy. It is true that one prepares himself for a delightful bit of melo-drama during the first part of the skit entitled, "The Passenger Wreck," but mirth knows no bounds before the close of the act when one wakes to the fact that the serious principals have only been acting for a motion picture production.

The Three Bennett Sisters give a handsome and amusing exhibition of physical culture exercises and clever demonstrations in boxing, fencing and wrestling. Joe Birnes in character songs and dialect stories pleasantly entertains the audience for fifteen minutes. He has a lot of new parodies on the latest songs.

Henry, Taylor, Hughes and Witzman, composing The Palace Quartet, have a delightful song review and incidentally work in a few new ones for good measure. The closing act, White's Animal Circus," introduces something new in this line. Many people have often seen high school horses, the kind that do all the latest dances and steps, but White has a donkey that can show the educated horses a few things at any time. He also has a number of wonderful dogs and an amusing clown-donkey who evidently don't like colored people.

AT THE LYRIC.

The Lyric has a big double show today, presenting "The Patriot," a political story of the inauguration, played right at the inauguration, "The Quality of Kindness" and "The Waters Beautiful." The story of "The Patriot" is as follows: "The storekeeper was the biggest man in Cranberry Center, and his neighbors were convinced that he would be a political here some day. He dutifully attended all conventions of his party, was on terms of personal friendship with the legislative candidates and each day became more and more convinced that the fate of the republic rested heavily upon his shoulders. When his party assumed power at Washington, after many long years, the idol of Cranberry Center decided that his services were needed at the nation's capital. His wife protested that it would be far better for him to remain at home and attend to business, but he overruled her. He was absolutely convinced that the new president needed him, so he determined to sacrifice himself upon the altar of his country and he did, with the usual results of these fellows as pictured by George Ade and Cartoonist McCutcheon. Tomorrow the Lyric will feature the two-reel Reliance, "The Judge's Vindication.

AT THE JEFFERSON

Today the Jefferson is showing three reels of western thrills entitled "Bedford's Hope," a picturized version of Lincoln J. Carter's melo-dramatic sensation of the same name. Wednesday afternoon only we will run a great flying machine picture "The Aviator's Generosity," in two reels. Wednesday evening the theater has been donated for an entertainment for the benefit of the flood sufferers and our regular program will not be given, but on Thursday and Friday the greatest version of "Bunyan's Pilgrim Progress," in four parts will be shown. The scenes are considered the masterpiece of the art of cinematography. Note the effect of shadows and sunlight and the magnificence of production. It is a work of art, a living picture. Then on Saturday, and this time for sure, we will show "Cleopatra" in six reels. Remember that both the "Pilgrim's Progress" and "Cleopatra" are long shows, so don't wait until the night shows but come early in the afternoon and avoid the crowds and make sure that you will see these wonderful pictures for it will be your last opportunity.

Come See the New Millinery at Dehms'!

Some Recent Fashion-Developments in Spring Millinery Are on Exhibition at this Store!

The new Italian Milan hats, in white and black, are here in an extensive diversity of models. The shapes come from such celebrated creators as Knox, Phipps, Ufland and Georgette.

HEMP AND TAGAL HATS
The new Hemp and Tagal hats are also now on display here. A great demand has recently developed for these hats, and the makers have been taxed to supply it. Our showing is complete, and presents the very newest ideas in those popular styles.
We are millinery specialists. Many of our hats are designed and created in our own workrooms. Others are purchased direct from the makers, thereby eliminating the extra profit that is usually absorbed by the middleman. This enables us to quote much lower prices than other stores are forced to charge for hats of equal merit. The $2.98 hat of other stores is sold at Dehm's for $2.25, and similar savings prevail on every hat, up to $9.98 hats which we sell for $7.45. When you see other hats advertised at special prices it is our low cash prices that has forced them down.
New Pattern Hats. A number of new pattern hats have just been received and placed on sale. They show the tendency of summer millinery toward Ratine, tagal braid, maline, and crepe effects. They are particularly charming and becoming. Quite a few of these new models are priced at $5 and $10.
We are agents for Heatheoat English Waterproof Maline. No rain can spoil Heatheoat Maline—all colors, 25c yd.

MOTHER WITNESS TO SAVE HER SON

"That Strange Man" Again Figures in Testimony in Hoover Case.

DEFENSE IS HEARD

Van Wert, O., April 8.—Judging from the character of the testimony brought out at this morning's session of the court in the trial of the Hoover case, when Mrs. A. Hoover, the mother of the defendant, was on the stand as a witness for the defense, it would appear the prisoner's attorneys have fallen back upon the theory that "it was a strange man" who fired the fatal shot that resulted in the death of the young wife, Mrs. Ralph Hoover.

In her direct examination Mrs. Hoover narrated the circumstances regarding being called by Ralph, her son, to his home by words that "Ella had been shot." When she got there she found the wounded woman lying on the floor and to the questions addressed to her the wife of Ralph said that a "strange man" had entered the house and shot her. The direct examination of Mrs. Hoover had not been completed when the court adjourned for the noon recess.

Unexpectedly the state finished its direct testimony late yesterday afternoon and before the court adjourned the defense had put on the stand two witnesses. Their testimony was not of a particularly important character. Great interest, however, centered around the testimony of the elder Mrs. Hoover this morning.

The State's Evidence.

The evidence of the state as tending to prove the guilt of the defendant, as presented by the witnesses on the stand in the trial of the case and placed before the jury, can be stated as follows:

The victim, Mrs. Hoover, the wife of the defendant, died as the direct result of the gun shot wounds. Hoover was at the scene of the tragedy about the noon hour and again between two and three o'clock. The shooting was done with a revolver which belonged to Hoover and, according to the chemical analysis and the microscopical examination of the food emitted from the stomach, found in the pool of blood upon the floor, the shooting occurred about one hour after the noon day meal. That Hoover claimed she was alive and well, seated on a couch reading a farm-journal, when he visited the dwelling between the hours of two and three o'clock.

That any one of the three shots would have produced unconsciousness, consequently, the second and third shots could not have been self-inflicted. That Hoover claimed she was in possession of her mental faculties when he returned home about five o'clock, in the evening, and that she declared a strange man had shot her, compelling her at the point of a shotgun to disclose the place where the revolver was kept.

That Hoover, in a conversation over the telephone, announced that she claimed to have been shot three times, but he did not make a like statement to the surgeons nor officers, and the second and third wounds were not discovered until the next day. That Hoover did not enter a denial of guilt when the victim affirmed, with a nod of the head, the question: "Did Ralph shoot you?" That Hoover married the girl under pressure.

FAINTS AS TALE OF GUILT ENDS

Mrs. Olson in Collapse as She Completes Her Testimony.

CASE NEARS A CLOSE

St. Paul, Minn., April 8.—Arguments in the trial of Prof. Oscar Olson for the slaying of Clyde N. Darling after he had discovered that improper relations existed between his wife and Darling, were in progress today, and it is expected that it may reach the jury tonight.

At the last words corroborating Prof. Olson's testimony relative to her relations with the laundryman fell from her lips last evening. Mrs. Olson threw her hands to her side, reeled and fell unconscious to the floor. She soon recovered, however, and was taken to her home.

Mrs. Darling, widow of the man whom Olson killed, then took the stand and gave testimony contradictory to that of Mrs. Olson.

Men and women fought so savagely to gain entrance to the court room before the session began that Judge Orr immediately ordered the room cleared of all except officials and newspaper men.

Mrs. Olson's collapse came at the end of four hours of severe questioning by the prosecuting attorney. She repeated under cross-examination today threats Darling is said to have made against Olson if the latter attempted to keep Mrs. Olson from him.

Threateened Her Husband.

Mrs. Olson testified that when she warned Darling to stay away from her home, saying that she would otherwise tell Prof Olson of their conduct, the man whom her husband afterward killed, said: "If you tell him, I'll fix him."

On another occasion when Darling insisted on talking to her when they met on the street she told him that he must cease his visits to her.

"If you mean that, I will tell every driver in town what you are," was Darling's reply, according to the wife of the defendant.

"Darling made his next visit a few days later," she continued. "I asked him how he knew I was alone and he replied: 'I called the college.'"

Detailed Her Shame.

Mrs. Olson went into details of her relations with Darling. Only once did she falter and that was when, under cross-examination, she was asked the whereabouts of her 5-year-old daughter when Darling visited her. In a broken voice she replied that the child was at a neighbor's home.

Mrs. Olson testified that once when she warned Darling, his answer was: "You're in the game now, and you are in to stay. Olson always has stood in our way. I'll put him out of the way if you tell him."

Mrs. Olson was followed on the stand by Mrs. Darling, who testified that her husband was at home the nights he is said to have spent with Mrs. Olson. She remained on the stand only a few minutes.

LAFAYETTE HAS MANY FIRES.

State Marshal Will Be Asked to Make Investigation.

Lafayette, Ind., April 8.—In the past twenty-four hours there have been eight fires in Lafayette. Fire Chief Beaucond is of the opinion that some of them were of incendiary origin. It is likely that the state fire marshal will be called here to make an investigation. A vacant house of North Twentieth street, owned by Attorney Martin A. Quinn, was partly destroyed. Whoever sought to burn the house put burning waste or oil between the plastering and the boarding and the firemen had a difficult time extinguishing the fire. The property was insured.

TO ARRANGE BANQUET.

I. C. S. Club Members Are to Hold Meeting This Evening.

Members of the I. C. S. club will meet this evening for the purpose of making plans for a "get-together" banquet to held within the near future. N. C. Pierce, president, is also to start a new class in mathematics.

A meeting of the Radio club of Fort Wayne will be held next Thursday evening in the club rooms at which time W. P. Klipple, a graduate of Purdue, will explain the electrical features of wireless telegraphy.

BRICK SELECTED AS NEW SURFACE

Maumee Avenue Property Owners Did Not Want Asphalt.

AWARDS ARE MADE

Maumee avenue property owners want brick instead of asphalt for resurfacing the thoroughfare and enough of them signed petitions to change from the selection of asphalt made by the board of public works.

On Lafayette street and Hanna street from the ends of the present pavements to the city limits the board had selected anchored bituminous asphalt but the property owners prefer sheet asphalt, and these changes were made.

There were several contests before the board at the meeting this morning but none close enough to create any doubt in the minds of the board members.

Contracts Are Let.

Contracts for the paving were let today as follows:

Second street, Wells to Cass—Grace Construction company, sheet asphalt; $6.93 lineal foot.

Maumee, resurfacing from Harmer to Anthony boulevard—Moellering Construction company, brick; $4.89 per foot and $5 cubic yard for extra concrete.

INJURIES CUT A FIGURE IN RACE

Clubs That Finish Best Keep Their Men on Regular Jobs.

STAHL WAS LUCKY

New York, April 8.—The widespread liability to injuries or sickness among earnest athletes plays a bigger part in determining pennant races than most people imagine. There is, for example, a general impression that ball players are a hardy lot—healthy, rugged, capable of absorbing terrific punishment.

That used to be the case, but not today. The higher priced they come—as in the case of guns, bric-a-brac and such—the more fragile they are. And the more fragile they are the less show their club has of finishing in the money.

Take the case of the New York Americans and Philadelphia Nationals of 1912—two ball clubs blessed with plenty of spightly material, but more than usually brittle. The Yanks finished last when they should have been sixth, and the Phillies finished fifth when they should have been neck and neck to the wire.

In the American league out of 175 starters there were exactly 28 athletes capable of lasting 125 games or more. From 64 regulars more than half missed over 20 games each through the year. In the National league there were 28 powerful enough to handle 125 games, but the percentage here was smaller than it should be.

In the National league there were two iron constitution athletes who worked in every game without missing a day. Bill Sweeney, of the Braves, and Owen Wilson, of the Pirates.

In the American league there were seven: Collins and Mclnnis, of Philadelphia; Milan and Foster, of Washington; Speaker and Lewis, of Boston, and Shotten, of St. Louis.

Six of the seven belonged to clubs that finished 1-2-3.

J. Garland Stahl's finely balanced world's champs, won both titles strictly upon the merits involved, but even then they required the break of the game to land in front of the Senators and Athletics. In the American league flag race Stahl was able to keep his pitching corps, led by Joe Wood, in prime shape all the year. More important still, he was able to maintain his six most important regulars in the foremost of the fight. His great outfield was there from April to the finish. Speaker and Lewis fought out every game. Harry Hooper missed but five. These six regulars—Speaker, Hooper, Lewis, Wagner, Gardner and Yerkes—guarding outfield and infield—averaged above 140 games to the man, and with the pitching and catching departments in prime condition the red hosed onslaught was irresistible. As great a team as Stahl had, an injury or setback to Wagner, Speaker or Wood lasting for any considerable period might have been fatal.

In the National hunt McGraw suffered one or two minor checks, but in the main the fortunes of war were with him. He had his big three—Mathewson, Marquard and Tesreau—ready for every start. And what is more to the point, he had the best second string of captives in the game. Shafer was good for any job on the infield on a par with any regular he was called upon to supplant. With Merkle injured, Snodgrass was better at first than in center, so the Giants were superbly fortified against any solid thumps from the boys handed fate. McGraw could have lost the active services of two infielders and two outfielders, a catcher and a pitcher among the regulars, and still have been able to place a pennant-fighting machine in the field at any stage of the journey.

JOHNNY BATES KNOWS JUST WHEN TO START FOR FLY BALLS AND JUST WHEN TO STOP RUNNING.

Cincinnati, O., April 8.—"Go-and-get-'em-Johnny" Bates, of the Cincinnati Reds, is the living reincarnation of Jimmy McAleer that was—McAleer, who made outfielding a science, not he who smokes his cigar at a pugnacious angle, and presidents the Boston team of world's champs.

Bate is a wonder on balls hit over his head. Some outfielders can cover acres going to right or left, but lack ability to go back for the long ones.

"Go-and-get-'em-Johnny" has a peculiar ability to judge fly balls. It is psychological, if instinct may be called by so multi-syllabilic a name.

When some heavy hitter hits the ball and it sets sail for the fence, Johnny turns and digs. When he again turns to take the ball, he has it judged to a nicety and is camped on the right spot.

He covers much ground because he never looks over his shoulder to watch the ball, as do many fielders, thus shortening their stride. He devotes his attention to getting over the ground.

Bates is to the National what Tris Speaker is to the American. Because of his speed he plays nearer second than any other National league outfielder, thus, like Speaker, killing off many line drives over second that would otherwise go for hits.

Bates, of course, plays the batter. He goes further back for Larry Doyle than for Miller Huggins, but he always manages to get that little edge on either fielders on drives over second.

Because of his ability to go back, Bates last year made one of the greatest catches ever seen on the Chicago Cubs' field. He went to the Cub clubhouse and pulled down a drive by Zimmerman. Previous drives to the same place by Heine had always gone for home runs. Players who saw the catch were dumbfounded when they realized the ground Bates covered to get the ball.

And Bates is the fellow they called a "dope" in Philadelphia.

JOHNNY BATES, PSYCHOLOGICAL OUTFIELDER OF THE REDS, STARTING HIS RUN AND SET FOR THE CATCH.

ZANESVILLE AND WHEELING STICK

Meeting of Interstate Directors is to Be Held Tomorrow.

TO OPEN ABOUT MAY 1

Canton, O., April 8.—Zanesville and Wheeling, the two Interstate cities which were hit hard by the recent floods, will not drop out of the circuit for the coming season. This decision removes all chance of the league being cut to a six-club organization, as was declared probable.

The information regarding the cities whose status had been questionable was received today by President Yost, of the Canton club, in a telegram from Charles Dawson, president of the league. It was the first word Yost has had from Zanesville, the capital of the Interstate, since the beginning of the floods that cut off the city from the rest of the world.

The telegram conveyed to Yost the first intimation he had of the Interstate meeting which is to be held here Wednesday, although the decision to meet here was reached by Dawson Saturday. It appears that the Canton magnate was one of the last to be notified of the assemblage of Interstate powers.

The magnates are to meet in the Courtland hotel at 1:30, according to the message from Dawson, for the purpose of considering the adoption of a schedule, which has been the cause of considerable anxiety and uncertainty among the magnates. It is now three weeks since the schedules were submitted to the owners for the purpose of taking a mail vote. No selection was made and the three weeks were practically wasted.

President Yost is of the opinion that the circuit will open by the first of May, as was original planned. There had been considerable doubt as to the possibility of getting Zanesville and Wheeling under way by that time on account of the floods, but it now seems that it can be done without handicapping the two teams.

The news that Zanesville and Wheeling will be able to continue in the league removes a lot of speculation that was caused by the damage to their parks. Both ball lots were flooded. That the Central and the Interstate would combine to form one eight-club circuit, that the Interstate would travel through the season with six clubs and that the league would succumb altogether—these were some of the rumors started by the reports of the flood damage. All rumors went a-glimmering with Dawson's announcement that Zanesville and Wheeling would stick.

The effect of the telegram locally will be notices sent to the players under contract to report. Manager Myers has been waiting for a week or more to hear from the president on the condition of the league, not knowing whether to order the squad to report or not, with the pitchers and catchers assembling just as soon as possible. Some may be here toward the end of this week.

READY FOR THE START.

Brooklyn to Open Park in Advance of Other National League Clubs.

New York, April 8.—Major league baseball, scheduled to continue for 188 consecutive days before clocks are clear for the world championship battle of 1913, is due to begin tomorrow. The start, however, will be confined to a single game in Brooklyn's new baseball park with the other major league cities held in leash until Thursday for the general opening in both leagues.

It was by special dispensation of the National league that the opening in Brooklyn was advanced a day in deference to the fact that a magnificent new stadium has been erected there. The game tomorrow will be with the Philadelphia club and indications are that a record crowd will be seen at the opening ceremonies if rain does not interfere. The local forecast threatens rain.

On Thursday in the National league circuit there will be openings with Boston at New York, at Cincinnati with Pittsburg, at Chicago with St. Louis and a second game of the Philadelphia-Brooklyn series in Philadelphia. In the American league cities Thursday's games will be New York at Washington, Philadelphia at Boston, Chicago at Cleveland and Detroit at St. Louis. The league champions of last year, the New York Nationals, and the Boston Americans open the season under the same leadership and with forces practically intact.

IS AFTER JOHNNY THOMPSON.

Glen Coakley Would Like to Get on With the Cyclone.

Manager Frank Coakley would like to get a match here for his brother, Glen Coakley, with Cyclone Johnny Thompson and he thinks it would make a good drawing card. There will be no match here in April unless Manager George Biemer changes his mind later, and Coakley proposes the match for next month.

Glen Coakley is scheduled to box at either Knox or Plymouth on April 16, and will take part in a big benefit match at Columbus, O., on April 18.

ANNOUNCES UMPIRES FOR OPENING.

Chicago, April 8.—President Johnson, of the American league, last night announced the following assignments of umpires for the opening games on Thursday of this week:

At Cleveland, O'Loughlin and Ferguson; at St. Louis, Evans and Hildebrand; at Boston, Dineen and Hart, and at Washington, Connolly and McGreevy.

REVOLT AGAINST AMATUER RULING

College Men to Form a League and Have Salary List.

JOHNSON IS HELPING

Chicago, April 8.—Plans are nearing completion for the formation of a college men's baseball league with salaried players, according to a story in a morning newspaper today. The movement, the paper says, considered a revolt against the rule makers pertaining to amateur athletes and against the Amateur Athletic association. It is to have the support of President B. B. Johnson, of the American league, and Coach George Huff, of the University of Illinois, is to be its president.

The league is to be formed entirely of undergraduate players and is to have eight or possibly ten clubs. The managers of the teams are to be the coaches or managers of college clubs or graduate coaches. The season will begin about June 15 and end about Sept. 15, with seventy-seven games in the schedules. The games will be played on the grounds of the two big leagues while the home teams are on visiting engagements.

The players will sign contracts stipulating that they will not play against professionals or teams having professional players.

A percentage of the gate receipts in each game shall be set aside to endow scholarships in universities and colleges, and the players shall be paid fair salaries for their work, including hotel and traveling expenses. All games are to be played under the rules and jurisdiction of the national baseball commission.

WILL HOLD A MEETING.

The West End Athletic association will hold a meeting this evening at the club rooms, 1224 Calhoun street. All members are requested to be present.

FORT WAYNE DID NOT ENTER TEAM

State Tourney Starts Tonight With a Few Clubs Listed.

HURT BY THE FLOODS

South Bend, Ind., April 8.—For the reason that the schedule had not been prepared in time for the opening of the Indiana bowling tournament it was postponed from last night to tonight and it will start with only forty-nine five-men squads for the reason that both Fort Wayne and Terre Haute were hit by the floods and did not send teams.

Fort Wayne won the championship last year with the Germania club but the men were sadly affected by flood conditions in their home town and did not feel like making the trip to this city.

Indianapolis sent but three clubs, and most of the others are from this city, Mishawaka, Laporte and the other towns in the immediate vicinity. Even Mishawaka did not do as well as it did last year, sending only three teams, as against seven in 1912.

The small list has enabled the officers of the association to cut down the meeting three days, and although this city stood gamely by the organization at the head of the tourney, the affair has been a sad disappointment.

The first week of the tournament will be confined principally to five-men team work until Friday, when the first out of town delegation blows in for a tryout. On this evening there will be three teams from Ligonier, two from Laporte and one from Gary. Local bowlers are so scheduled as to keep the balls rolling constantly. The schedule for the opening games Tuesday are as follows:

AINSWORTH TREATED LIKE DOZENS OF YOUNGSTERS WHO TRY.

Earl ("Red") Ainsworth, baseball martyr—one of the many whose martyrdom is not recorded in the annals of the game.

This is the opinion of Tim Murnane, once a noted player, but now a sporting writer on one of the Boston papers. He has figured Ainsworth, drafted from the Youngstown club by the Red Sox, a striking example of the injustice of major league clubs in their policy of picking up dozens of youngsters and turning back practically all of them. Here in what Murnane has to say of Ainsworth's case, in part:

"Hoping that the men who make the baseball conditions will read and reflect, I want to tell the troubles of one minor league player who came south for a trial and got all the worst of it. I refer to Pitcher Ainsworth, who was purchased from the Youngstown club by the Boston Red Sox and reported at Hot Springs March 3. After a three weeks' trial he was given notice that he was not wanted by Boston and transportation furnished to Youngstown. The season at Youngstown would not begin for nearly four weeks.

"He was forced to lay off until time to report at Youngstown and start his training for the second time. This meant nearly two months in preparation. In the south it cost the boy money and while money was going out there was nothing coming in. A class B player receives a small salary at the best for five months and is forced to work during the winter months. Ainsworth was a machinist, receiving $25 a week, so he was out nearly $200 in salary, money that was needed to support his mother and a small family. This is one of the many cases each spring and brings no credit to professional baseball.

"If a certain small sum was held out from the price agreed on by the majors and given to the recruit that went through his part of the deal the youngster could have something for his pains when he returns to his old club discouraged, without, as in many cases, receiving a fair trial.

"Those of the youngsters who fail to make good, but are bright and game, come back for the second trial with chances improved, for the reason that they have learned something from the veterans of the game. Whether the boys make good or not they are entitled to something for their time."

BURDEN IS ON PLAINTIFF.

Must Show Negligence in Suit For Damages For X-Rays Use.

Washington, April 8. In the first decision ever announced by the supreme court of the United States in regard to the use of the X-rays the tribunal held that the burden was on the plaintiff, in suits for damages resulting from the use of the X-rays to show the physician or defendant was negligent and that the physician in such suits need not show he was not negligent.

The decision was announced in the suit of Anne Sweeney of this city, who sued a local physician for damages for an X-ray burn. In the lower court she received no damages.

DEMOCRATS IN CAUCUS.

Tariff and Organization Go Over Until Tomorrow.

Washington, April 8.—House democrats assembled in caucus today immediately after President Wilson had read his message. They did not take up the tariff bill, however. It went over to tomorrow together with organization details.

Progressives drew three places in today's allotments. Murdock got on Ways and Means; Chandler, of New York, Rules, and Woodruff, of Michigan, got on Accounts. The progressives expect to get in all 40 of 270 minor places. These republicans got places: Ways and Means, Payne, Fordney Gardner, Moore, Anderson and Green, (Iowa); Rules, Campbell, Lenroot, Merritt; Accounts, Hughes, West Virginia, Griest and Parker; Mileage, Kennedy (Iowa,) Johnson, (Utah); Enrolled Bills, Anthony Foss (Ohio.)

Has Undergone Two Operations for Gastric Ulcers in Stomach.

William G. Lew, of 306 East Williams street, who has been suffering from gastric ulcers for a long time, underwent a successful operation a few days ago at the Lutheran hospital and is said to be rapidly recovering. About three weeks ago the operation was decided upon, but at that time Mr. Lew's physical condition would not permit the ordeal. His illness had caused about all of his blood to leave the body, and a brother, Frank Lew, gave up a pint of blood to strengthen the sick man and prepare him physically for the operation which saved his life.

HEN LAYS BOILED EGG.

Poultry Raiser Seeking Identity of Her Miraculous Fowl.

Paulsboro, N. J., April 8.—Mrs. M. C. Titus, of this place, has a hen which, she is led to believe, lays boiled eggs. Mrs. Titus retails her eggs in the borough, and a few days ago, shortly after making a sale, a customer returned with a boiled egg. Mrs. Titus and the customer say neither had a boiled egg around their respective homes, and the only way Mrs. Titus could account for the egg was that a hen laid it already cooked, as the eggs were gathered fresh for the sale. She will keep a close watch in an effort to find which hen lays boiled eggs.

CLINIC ON PROGRAM

The Allen County Medical society will hold its regular weekly meeting this evening at the Lutheran hospital, and tomorrow, the semi-annual meeting of the Twelfth District Medical society will be held in Fort Wayne, beginning at 9:30 o'clock in the morning with a clinic at St. Joseph's hospital under the direction of Dr. A. C. Kimberlin, of Indianapolis, president of the Indiana State Medical association.

The meeting at Lutheran hospital tonight will be in charge of Dr. H. A. Duenling, Dr. B. Van Sweringen and Dr. A. L. Schneider. The meeting will be clinical and a very large and excellent assortment of X-ray plates will be exhibited. A special feature of the evening will be plates showing X-ray pictures of diseased bones. One plate will show the various stages of the development of a bone disease which resulted in the amputation of a leg.

The District Meeting.

One of the cases is that of a Fort Wayne man who is unable to concentrate his mind as the result of a railroad accident. The case has puzzled Fort Wayne physicians for some time, but it is believed that relief can be found. Another Fort Wayne man who for more than a year has suffered constant and severe pain in the abdomen, which local physicians have been unable to relieve will be given the advantage of a free examination and treatment by Dr. Kimberlin, who is a clever clinician and has had broad experience in diagnosing obscure cases. Dr. Kimberlin is a member of the faculty of the Indiana University School of Medicine.

Afternoon Program.

The session will adjourn for lunch at 12 o'clock, and the first business of the afternoon session will be the election of officers. The program is as follows:

Famous "Pint of Cough Syrup" Receipt

No Better Remedy at Any Price. Fully Guaranteed.

Make a plain syrup by mixing one pint of granulated sugar and ½ pint of warm water and stir for two minutes. Put 2½ ounces of pure Pinex (fifty cents' worth), in a pint bottle, and fill it up with the Sugar Syrup. This gives you a family supply of the best cough syrup at a saving of $2. It never spoils. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

The effectiveness of this simple remedy is surprising. It seems to take hold instantly, and will usually stop the most obstinate cough in 24 hours. It tones up the jaded appetite and is just laxative enough to be helpful in a cough, and has a pleasing taste. Also excellent for bronchial trouble, throat tickle, sore lungs and asthma, and an unequaled remedy for whooping cough and croup.

This recipe for making cough remedy with Pinex and Sugar Syrup (or strained honey) is a prime favorite in thousands of homes in the United States and Canada. The plan has been imitated, though never successfully. CLOCK TURNS FIRE ALARM.

Hotel Guest Responsible for Companies' Long Run.

Atlantic City, N. J., April 8.—Hearing what he believed to be a fire bell ringing on one of the upper floors, William Fhanstein, manager of the Royal Palace hotel, sent in an auxiliary fire alarm. A few moments later Atlantic avenue was filled with fire apparatus, some of the companies covering more than a mile in their rush to the hazardous beach-front section. An investigation resulted in the discovery that an alarm clock in one of the guests' apartments had been responsible for calling out the firemen, who took a philosophic view of the affair, declaring that they needed the exercise.

ARE INSPECTING BLOCK SIGNALS

Nickel Plate Heads Look Over New System on Chicago Division.

WABASH RECEIVERS WANT MORE MONEY

They Petition Federal Court for $7,489,500 for Improvements.

In order to inspect the new interlocking block signals which have recently been installed on the Nickel Plate between this city and Tippecanoe, a stretch of sixty miles, a party of Nickel Plate officials left the city at 8 o'clock this morning. The main object of the trip was to get the most recent installation, which is between Claypool and Tippecanoe, into perfect working order. Those who went on the inspection trip were Chief Engineer E. E. Hart, Superintendent H. N. Williams, Trainmaster C. L. Titus, Signal Supervisor J. H. Oppelt, and several other men connected with the signal department.

It is the plan of the Nickel Plate to install the interlocking block signals throughout the length of the Chicago division during the coming summer. The work is being done a section at a time, but is going on rapidly and soon the Nickel Plate will have its tracks protected from here to Chicago.

DROPPED DEAD FROM APOPLEXY.

Richard R. Metheaney, G. R. & I. Secretary Dies Suddenly.

Richard R. Methenney, auditor and secretary of the Grand Rapids & Indiana railroad, succumbed suddenly from apoplexy yesterday at his home in Grand Rapids. He was well known in Fort Wayne railroad circles, and was married here six years ago to Mrs. Eva LaMar, at the home of her sister, Mrs. Louis Augur. Mr. Metheaney had held his important office for a number of years.

HAS PAID PENSIONS 13 YEARS.

Pennsylvania System Inaugurated Pension Fund 13 Years Ago.

On April 7 the Pennsylvania railroad system completed the thirteenth year of its pension system. One of the first acts of A. J. Cassatt on becoming president of the road in 1899 was to recommend to the board of directors that without delay a plan be placed in operation to pension employes who had reached the age of 70 years.

Mr. Cassatt's plan for taking care of faithful employes in their old age provides that the entire pension be paid by the company. Every employe must retire at the age of 70. In case of physical disability at the age of 65 the employe may be retired. The pension amounts to 1 per cent of the average salary or wage for the ten years previous to retirement, multiplied by the number of years the man has been in the employ of the company. No man may enter the employ of the Pennsylvania after attaining the age of 45 years, so when a man retires at 70 he receives at least 25 per cent of his average annual salary for the last ten years. A pensioner may not, under any conditions, re-enter the employ of the system.

The plan has proved to be an immense benefit to a great number of men, and has contributed enormously to the contentment of the men in the service.

B. & O. TRAINS KEEP LIMIT.

Passenger Trains Are Equipped With Speed Recorders.

The through passenger trains on the main line of the Baltimore & Ohio are now equipped with speed recorders, two to a train. One is in the baggage car and the other in the locomotive. In the baggage car the "Haushalter" speed tape is used, while on the locomotive the "Boyer" speed recorder is employed. Both of these machines make records on tape. At the end of each trip the tape is taken out by the local inspector, who make a suitable record of the date and time and sends the whole to the office of the general inspector of transportation, where a permanent record is kept. The information given on the tapes is checked against the rates of speed prescribed, so that excessive speed is at once brought to notice. The maximum speed of passenger trains on the B. & O., excepting between Philadelphia and Washington, is sixty miles an hour, and the officers require a rigid observance of the limit. On the Philadelphia-Washington line the limit is sixty-five miles an hour.

KELLY TAKES CHARGE.

Operator With a Souse Ties Up Traffic on Railroad.

Smart, Cal., April 8. J. W. Kelly, a Southern telegraph operator, was arrested here yesterday after he had tied up trains for some hours and necessitated the sending of a special train from Blue Canyon with railroad police and a dispatcher. Kelly, who is alleged to have been drinking, amused himself by taking charge of the direction of traffic along the line. He is said to have ignored official messages and substituted others more to his liking, until rail and wire service was so demoralized that all trains on the division were ordered held at sidings until the situation could be cleared. After the arrival of the special train and the arrest of Kelly, some time was required to readjust running schedules and get traffic moving again. Kelly later was released, it being found there was no specific charge that would cover his shortcoming.

RECEIVERS PETITION FOR MONEY.

Wabash Planning For More Improvements to Roadbed and Rolling Stock.

Frederic A. Delano, William K. Bixby and Edward B. Pryor, receivers for the Wabash railroad company, have filed a petition in the federal district court at St. Louis for the expenditure of $7,489,500 for improvements to the roadbed and rolling stock. The following items are set forth in the petition: $3,525,000 for engines and rolling stock; for new rails to replace old ones and "to bring the track up to the condition of ur best competitors," $1,010,000; for improving the roadbed by double-tracking and elevation the receivers want $2,954,000; for twenty passenger equipment cars, $300,000; two hundred hopper cars, $200,000; thirty additional engines, $600,000; one thousand steel car underframes for box cars, $900,000; seven hundred and fifty automobile cars, $675,000.

In connection with the work of double-tracking the road, permission is asked to start condemnation proceedings on certain short stretches of land at various points along its present right-of-way.

KNITTERS HOLD MEETING.

Committee Will Hear Address by Theo. F. Thieme on Friday Night.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Textile Workers' union last night a special committee was appointed to attend a lecture by Theodore F. Thieme at the Commercial club on Friday night of this week. Mr. Thieme's subject will be "What Ails Us? An Up-to-Date Diagnosis of All Our Troubles." His talk will consist mainly of a discussion of our present system of government. The committee which will attend the address is composed of Ervin Holt, Fred Denter, Arthur Lohse, Ben Storch and Charles Butler.

Mr. Thieme addressed a communication to the union asking that the union be represented at the talk, and also made an offer to donate $100 to the union to assist such members that suffered by the flood. The offer was declined with a vote of thanks, however, as all who were in need have been taken care of.

N. Y. CENTRAL BUYS EQUIPMENT.

Spends $2,000,000 for New Rolling Stock.

The New York Central has completed an order for equipment amounting to about $2,000,000. The purchase will include twenty-three multiple unit motors, twenty-two multiple unit trailers, twelve electric locomotives, eighty-five steam road engines, eleven steel dining cars, fifty steel vestibule coaches, twenty-five steel postal cars and fifty steel baggage cars. This purchase is designed to equip the through service with all-steel vestibule coaches, dining cars, and eventually the Pullman company is to add twenty-five all-steel parlor cars, thus making the entire new service all steel trains. This equipment expenditure will not be enough for the entire service and another order will shortly be placed.

INSPECTED WABASH WORK.

G. S. Foster, who had charge of the Wabash double-tracking and elevation work here last summer, arrived in the city late yesterday to look over the improvements. He was taken ill last fall while at work here and spent six weeks in the company's hospital at Peru, from where he went to take treatment at Hot Springs, Ark. After giving instructions for the building of a track scale in the freight yards and the construction of the Fairfield avenue subway, he will return to his headquarters at St. Louis.

THIRTEEN FOREIGNERS QUIT.

Because their foreman prohibited them from smoking cigarettes during working hours, thirteen foreigners who were brought here from Huntington by the Wabash company to work in the local shops have laid down their tools and quit. None of them were good laborers as they used much of their time in rolling cigarettes and chatting among themselves. The foreman "called" them for it, but the men resented it and their spokesman imparted the information that they would not work if they were denied their cigarettes.

REV. SMITH HOLDS LAST MEETING.

"Railroad Jim" Smith will hold his last meeting at the Railroad Y. M. C. A. tonight during his present stay in Fort Wayne. W. E. Kolb and E. L. Slater, of the Pennsylvania machine shop, have returned to work after an absence of a week on account of injuries.

Fred Klinke had his nose painfully bruised while at work at the Pennsylvania tank shop late yesterday, when he was struck in the face with some boards which he was carrying through a door.

Ross A. LaMar, of the Pennsylvania machine shop, has gone to Grand Rapids to attend the funeral of Richard R. Metheaney, secretary and auditor of the Grand Rapids and Indiana railroad, who died yesterday.

C. D. Wheeler, of the advertising and publication department of the Electric works, has gone to the eastern factories of the General Electric company on business. He will stop in Schenectady, N. Y., Philadelphia and New York city before returning home.

WILL MEET APRIL 22.

Trustees Will Not Elect Successor to Felger on April 15.

On April 22 the township trustees will meet with County Auditor Calvin H. Brown to elect a successor to Henry G. Felger, superintendent of county schools. The date was originally fixed for April 15, but a number of aspirants for the place took an examination last Saturday and their papers will not be graded and returned soon enough for them to get into the scramble for the office. Mr. Brown has issued notice of the meeting.

Pettit's Storage Warehouse instead of increasing their rates, as rumored, have reduced them one-third to all flood sufferers. 3-26-tf.

LADIES' TO ENTERTAIN.

Under the auspices of branch No. 370, L. C. B. A., a social entertainment will be given at St. Patrick's Lyceum on the evening of April 10. The numbers have arranged a number of awards for the contestants and luncheon will be served during the evening. Music will be furnished by the Metropolitan orchestra. The committee in charge of the entertainment is composed of Mrs. Fishleigh, Mrs. Dennie, Mrs. Langard, Mrs. Seebert and Miss Casey.

Theatrical Manager—"Your costume bill is appalling! Three $400 gowns in two weeks!"

Star—"Well, they got grease paint on them, and your can't expect Juliet to appear in a white tunic that's spotted."

Anty Drudge—"Just buy a cake of Fels-Naptha Soap, Mr. Manager, and you can make every one of them tunics as white as ever. Fels-Naptha Soap will take out grease paint, grease and every other kind of stain, and it won't harm the most delicate fabric."

Fels-Naptha Soap makes stains disappear. Coffee stains, fruit stains, ink stains, blood stains and grease spots are easy for it. While the soaped clothes are soaking in cool or lukewarm water, Fels-Naptha dissolves the grease and makes dirt vanish. A light rub in rinsing will leave the clothes white and pure. All this without boiling or hard rubbing.

LIKED WINE AND DRANK TOO MUCH

Cleaned Cellar and Came Mighty Near Cleaning Wine Cask.

CITY COURT DOCKET

When Ed Berry, engaged in cleaning a Lakeside cellar yesterday, found a cask of wine he tried a little of it to see if the water had damaged it to any appreciable extent and when he found it hadn't he devoted more time to the cask than to the duty he was hired for and late in the afternoon "Cy" Andrews got him in his motor car.

This morning it was shown that he had been cursing and swearing in a manner distinctly shocking to Lakeside residents and the judge sent him over to the crowded county jail for a term of fifteen days.

The Other Cases.

Henry Kammeyer was acquitted of the charge of assault and battery preferred by his sister, Sophia Jacobs and they were warned by the judge to keep the peace.

Oscar Cisel said he was not guilty of stealing a razor and umbrella from Jacob W. Shirley and he asked a continuance to April 18.

Martin Flynn, Joe Conners, Joe Adams and Joe Crossney, plain drunks, were let go.

On a charge of wife desertion Herbert Seeger was held to the circuit court under a bond of $500. His wife testified that after he and she had been ordered out of a Main street rooming house he went back and took up his abode with the landlady.

they were before the change began, or have moved in the direction they were given when no large circumstance of our industrial development was what it is today. Our task is to square them with the actual facts. The sooner that is done the sooner we shall escape from suffering from the facts and the sooner our men of business will be free to thrive by the law of nature (the nature of free business) instead of by the law of legislation and artificial arrangement.

Has Wandered Far.

We have seen tariff legislation wander far afield in our day—very far indeed from the field in which our prosperity might have had a normal growth and stimulation. No one who looks the facts squarely in the face or knows anything that lies beneath the surface of action can fail to perceive the principles upon which recent tariff legislation has been based. We long ago passed beyond the modest notion of "protecting" the industries of the country and moved boldly forward to the idea that they were entitled to the direct patronage of the government. For a long time—a time so long that the men now active in public policy hardly remember the conditions that preceded it—we have sought in our tariff schedules to give each group of manufacturers or producers what they themselves thought that they needed in order to maintain a practically exclusive market as against the rest of the world. Consciously or unconsciously, we have built up a set of privileges and exemptions from competition behind which it was easy by any, even the crudest, forms of combination to organize monopoly; until at last nothing is normal, nothing is obliged to stand the tests of efficiency and economy, in our world of big business, but everything thrives by concentrated arrangement. Only new principles of action will save us from a final hard crystallization of monopoly and a complete loss of the influences that quicken enterprise and keep independent energy alive.

Principles Are Plain.

It is plain what those principles must be. We must abolish everything that bears even the semblance of privilege or of any kind of artificial advantage, and put our business men and producers under the stimulation of a constant necessity to be efficient, economical and enterprising, masters of competitive supremacy, better workers and merchants than any in the world. Aside from the duties laid upon articles which we do not, and probably can not, produce, therefore, and the duties laid upon luxuries and merely for the sake of the revenues they yield, the object of the tariff duties henceforth laid must be effective competition, the wheeting of American wits by contest with the wits of the rest of the world.

It would be unwise to move toward this end headlong, with reckless haste, or with strokes that cut at the very roots of what has grown up amongst us by long process and at our invitation. It does not alter a thing to upset it and break it and deprive it of a chance to change. It destroys it. We must make changes in our fiscal laws, our fiscal system, whose object is development, a more free and wholesome development, not revolution or upset or confusion. We must build up trade, especially foreign trade. We need the outlet and the enlarged field of energy more than we ever did before. We must build up industry as well, and must adopt freedom in the place of artificial stimulation only so far as it will build, not pull down. In dealing with the tariff the method by which this may be done will be a matter of judgment, exercised item by item. To some not accustomed to the excitements and responsibilities of greater freedom our methods may in some respects and at some points seems heroic, but remedies may be heroic and yet remedies. It is our business to make sure that they are genuine remedies. Our object is clear. If our motive is above just challenge and only an occasional error of judgment is chargeable against us, we shall be fortunate.

Meeting Responsibility.

We are called upon to render the country a great service in more matters than one. Our responsibility should be met and our methods should be thorough, as thorough as moderate and well considered, based upon the facts as they are, and not worked out as if we were beginners. We are to deal with the facts of our own day, with the facts of no other, and to make laws which square with those facts. It is best, indeed it is necessary, to begin with the tariff. I will urge nothing upon you now at the opening of your session which can obscure that first object or divert our energies from that clearly defined duty. At a later time I may take the liberty of calling your attention to reforms which should press close upon the heels of the tariff changes, if not accompany them, of which the chief is the reform of our banking and currency laws; but just now I refrain. For the present, I put these matters on one side and think only of this one thing—of the changes in our fiscal system which may best serve to open once more the free channels of prosperity to a great people whom we would serve to the utmost and throughout both rank and file.

WOODROW WILSON.

The White House, April 8, 1913.

Two Motives Influenced Him.

President Wilson reverted today to the custom of a century ago in reviving the precedent which congress heard from the lips of the chief executive of the country his message to the national legislature. Two motives influenced Mr. Wilson to decide to read in person his first communication to congress—the perfunctory way in which presidential messages usually were received, accompanied as they have been by the drone of a clerk's voice and empty seats and Mr. Wilson's desire that every member should hear his appeal for a thorough revision of the tariff, the sole purpose for which congress was called into extraordinary session.

Sentiment as to the political wisdom of the move has partly crystalized as the procedure of the early days was only a historical record so far as the modern legislator was concerned. Senators and representatives, acknowledged the constitutional right of the president to read his own message in the halls of congress.

Occupied Little Time.

The president's message itself was about 1,200 words long when he first prepared it but in view of the changed circumstances he added a preface but his entire speech was of less than fifteen minutes reading.

Secretaries Lane, McAdoo, Daniels and Garrison took seats in the executive gallery of the house for themselves and families to hear the president read his message. Secretary Bryan said he had another engagement for the same hour and could not go. Mrs. Wilson and her three daughters also took seats in the executive gallery. The cabinet was in session today at the regular hour but it was only to adjourn to permit the president to leave the white house for the capitol at 12:30 o'clock.

At 12:55 Vice President Marshall and members of the senate got seated in the house chamber. President Wilson reached the speaker's office at 12:55 o'clock.

The president was cheered as he mounted the rostrum and shook hands with Speaker Clark. He began to speak immediately. There was intense silence in the great room, the president speaking in an ordinary tone as he explained his coming in person to deliver his message.

Speaks Through a Hush.

As the president read on, every eye was riveted toward the speaker's stand with its new occupant. Never in the life of any man present had the president occupied that historic place in such a capacity. Here was the head of the nation come to assert that he was a person, "a human being" come to deal with his fellow men in control of the nation's destiny as a man of force, not a mere department of the government. It was all so unusual that to many it seemed almost unreal, but the president, smiling as he spoke and talking to the great assemblage as man to man, soon developed in the gathering a fellow feeling. Throughout the message the president read in a clear voice which carried his words to every corner of the big hall through a hush.

Members of the house and senate sat throughout in rapt attention following every word closely. A murmur of conversation that swept the hallway when the president began, was soon hushed as the tall, imposing figure at the clerk's desk read on in his commanding but conversational style. As he closed his introductory remarks, explaining his presence before them senators and representatives joined in applause.

Leaves Amid Applause.

The president concluded the reading at 1:08 amid a wave of applause and immediately left the chamber. As the president concluded, he said: "I thank you sincerely."

As the house and senate members arose and applauded, the president stepped quickly down from the clerk's desk and escorted by his reception committee, left the hall.

The vice president left the speaker's stand and headed the procession of senators as it left the chamber. The visit of the president to congress had lasted ten minutes and became history. The president tarried a few minutes in the speaker's room after leaving the chamber and chatting with Representatives Underwood, Palmer and Mann, and Senators Kern, Bacon and Gallinger. He then left the capitol for the white house.

QUIT LEVEES TO SAVE WHISKY.

Kentucky Flood Workers Rescue Liquor to the Last Drop.

Washington, April 8.—Hundreds of barrels of whisky, swept from a demolished bonded warehouse in Kentucky in the recent flood were rescued by heroes who saved them to the last drop, according to a report received today by Commissioner Cabell from one of the internal revenue agents. The warehouse containing six thousand barrels was practically destroyed.

Men even left the levees said the officer to save Kentucky's product. The location of the warehouse was not disclosed because it might create unnecessary alarm among the owners of the whisky, all of which is safe.

FINDS BOY, SHOT, IN BARN.

Father Learns That Companions, After Acidcent, Summon no Aid.

Anderson, Ind., April 8.—Charles Fox, 14 years old, was found early today in an old barn at Rocky avenue and West Eighth street with a bullet wound in his leg. The boy together with two other boys had been hunting yesterday and one of the boys carried an old revolver. Fox, it is said, was accidentally shot in the leg. Finding that they could not get him home the other two boys carried him into the barn and, instead of summoning aid, built a fire in an old stove and decided to remain with him during the night. His father became anxious when his son had not returned at midnight and started a hunt for him. It was almost daylight when he located him in the old barn. A surgeon pronounced the wound a serious one, much aggrevated by inattention.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

MADE 1C ADVANCE.

Wheat Went Up to $1.08—Oats Quoted at 30 Cents.

Wheat is advancing by the 1c leaps. That was the leap it took today when it went from $1.07 to $1.08. Similar leaps were taken last week when it rose gradually from $1.03 to $1.05, and advancing Saturday to $1.07. Various causes are assigned for the advance, among them being the exports, condition of the growing crop and speculation. Oats also shows stronger tendencies. The local mill quotations today are 30c.

The local produce market is characterized by stronger tones, particularly on butter and eggs. Best country butter retails at 35c per pound and eggs at 17@18c. Potatoes have a downward tendency. Considerable hay was brought into the city Monday, the city scales reporting 25 loads.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago Market.

Chicago, April 8.—Expectation that the government's report today would be bearish, sent wheat down after an irregular opening. Opening quotations on May were 92¾c to 93c. Influential selling quickly sent that option off to 92¼@92⅝c, but some support was given on the higher Liverpool cables and there was a fair rally.

The close was easy with May at 91⅞@92c, a net loss of 1c.

Selling by local speculators sent May corn off ⅛c to ¼c after a steady opening with May a shade lower to a shade higher at 55⅜c to 55⅝c. After touching 55⅝c prices rallied around the opening figures.

The close was easy, with May at 91⅞.

The finish was weak with May at 55⅛@55¼c.

General selling caused oats to ease off, May touching 35⅛c after an opening that was unchanged to a shade lower at 35⅜@35¼c.

Higher figures were made in the entire provision list, influenced by good commission houses buying. Opening figures showed a range of 2½c lower to 7½c higher, May prices being $19.72½ to $19.77½ for pork, $10.85 to $10.80 for lard and $11.10 to $11.12½ for ribs.

THE DAY ON WALL STREET.

New York, April 8.—While there was evidence of hesitation at the opening, the trading element was not long kept in doubt as to the market's position for the time being of some of the active speculative interests, for stocks usually associated with these interests were marked up briskly. Bonds were irregular.

Buying of Amalgamated was the feature of the stock market opening today. Some large blocks were purchased in anticipation of a favorable report by the copper producers late in the day and the price advanced a point. First prices through the list showed changes for the most part small and irregular, with a stiffening of a majority of the speculative leaders. C. & O. gained a point. The petroleum stocks were heavy.

The market closed strong. Pool operations were resumed on a large scale. The general market also made a belated response to the favorable incidents of the day. Reading and Amalgamated were lifted several points beyond yesterday's close and the remainder generally touched the highest prices of the session. Trading was active, and the buying for short account gave a considerable impulse to the movement.

"When vacancies happen in the representation of any state in the senate, the executive authority of such state shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies, provided that the legislature of any state may empower the executive thereof to make temporary appointments until the people fill the vacancies by election as the legislature may direct."

The amendment primarily transfers the power of electing senators from the state legislatures to the people at the polls. To effect this change it was necessary to alter the machinery for the filling of vacancies in the senate.

Sixty Years Under Way.

For more than sixty years proposals have been made to change the constitution so as to provide for the direct election of senators. It was not, however, until June 24, 1911, that the senate was induced for the first time in its history to give its consent to the change. On that day it voted to submit to the states the proposed amendment. The resolution to submit had already passed the house in a somewhat different form. Before adjournment of the session, both houses agreed to the language to be employed, and the resolution was deposited with the secretary of state May 16, 1912, for distribution among the states.

The original theory in establishing the choice of senators was that they represented the states, whereas the members of the house represented the people of their districts. It was because of this theory of the state as a unit that all states, large and small, were given equal representation in the senate. Rhode Island having the same number as New York or Pennsylvania. In the theory of the constitution framers this entity of the state was thus made more distinct under the federal system, and the state legislature was regarded as the suitable medium for expressing this state entity. Later it was contended that state entity would still be preserved if the people of the entire state, instead of the legislature, chose the senators, and this view has now been accepted as the basis of the new system.

First Action Taken.

In 1826 the first action was taken in congress looking to a change. In that year Representative Storrs, of New York, introduced a resolution making senators elective by the people. Another resolution of similar import was introduced by Representative Wright of Ohio, in 1829. In 1850 Senator Clemens of Alabama, introduced the first senatorial direct election resolution in the senate. Nothing resulted from these movements.

It was Andrew Johnson who revived congressional agitation for the direct election of senators. As a member of the house of representtaives, he introduced two resolutions for the change, and in 1860 renewed the agitation as a member of the senate. In 1869 as president, he sent a special message to congress advocating the measure, and then repeated his recommendations in his annual message.

The subject was revived in 1873, 1876, 1886 and 1888, but without success. In 1893 the house agreed to the proposition, as it did in the succeeding congress, and still again in 1898, 1900 and 1902. The proposed change on none of these occasions won a favorable report from committees in the senate.

Senate the Battleground.

With the house thus arrayed year after year in favor of the change, the senate became the battleground. Senator Bristow, of Kansas, took the lead in advocacy of amending the constitution along this line. In December, 1909, he introduced his first resolution. A year later he obtained a report from the committee but a feature had been tacked onto his proposal which brought on a fight in the senate, threatened to kill the entire proposition. This interposed feature was to amend other provisions of the constitution so as to deprive the federal government of power to supervise the state regulations as to the time and manner of election. The votes of southern senators threatened to defeat the main proposition if the federal government was given this power. Senator Root made a speech, in which he criticized the method employed by southern states in depriving negroes of the right of suffrage. Senator Bacon replied that the federal government was being given the power once more to enact "force bills" and send armies and marshals into southern states to intimidate voters. On February 28, just before the end of the session, the resolution was defeated by four votes.

It Finally Wins.

Senator Bristow reintroduced the resolution in the special session immediately following. The fight of the preceding session was refought, but this time the friends of the resolution won by a vote of 64 to 24, or five more than the required two thirds.

The house had passed a resolution which made it clear the federal government was not to interfere with senatorial elections in the states. For weeks the measure was in conference. Finally the house conferees receded and the house agreed to the senate measure by a vote of 237 to 39.

Previous to this time, the several states had taken the bit in their teeth by enacting laws which in effect did not wait for a constitutional amendment on the subject. Probably the most successful of these was adopted in Oregon. It virtually directed the members of the legislature to elect the person who received the majority vote at the regular election, when the placing of the name of a candidate for United States senator upon the tickets was authorized.

Control by Corporations.

The control of legislatures by great corporations was assigned by Senator Bristow as one of the main reasons for the demanded change. "With the development during recent times of the great corporate interests of the country," said he, "and the increased importance of legislation relating to their affairs, they have tenaciously sought to control the election of senators friendly to their interests. The power of these great financial and industrial institutions can be very effectively used in the election of senators by legislators, and they have many times during recent years used that power in a most reprehensible and scandalous manner. They have spent enormous amounts of money in corrupting legislatures to elect to the senate men of their own choosing."

Turpie Led Crusade.

One of the first speeches made in the senate during the twenty-year crusade for the change in favor of the direct election was by Senator Turpie, of Indiana. In that speech he declared that the election of senators by legislatures was the one blemish on the democracy which was embodied in the American government.

One of the most notable speeches ever made in opposition to the change was that of Senator Hoar, of Massachusetts, in 1893. He stated the object of the election of senators by legislatures instead of by the people had been to remove one of the two bodies of legislation" from the operation of the fleeting passions of the hour, to lay its foundation below the frost, and to remove the appointment of the men who are to compose it, as far as may be, from the temporary excitements which so often move the people to their own harm."

"I am not afraid to say to the American people that it is dangerous to trust any great power of government to their direct or inconsiderate control," he added. "I am not afraid to tell them not only that their sober second thought is better than their hasty action, but that a government which is exposed to the hasty action of a people is the worst and not the best government on earth."

the city. When this has been done, by mechanical means, then it is time to use the cleansers. First remove the cause and then clean up is the advice given out today to those who are still in danger of contracting disease from the conditions following the recession of flood waters in Fort Wayne.

"The water itself is not dangerous yet, but the danger lies in the large quantity of garbage and other refuse that is in the water and about the city," continued Dr. Crull. "Get the dead horses, cats, dogs and chickens out of the way in some manner first and then the great danger of contagion, especially typhoid, will be eliminated.

"Typhoid is a contact disease and not an air disease. People do not breathe typhoid fever germs. In many instances they get typhoid from putting dirty hands to the mouth. If Fort Wayne gets typhoid fever this summer it will be through contact."

Guarding Against Sickness.

The city health department is working every day in co-operation with the high water relief association, and the board is making preparations to keep contagion from Fort Wayne. The keep contagion from Fort Wayne. The department has received a new and large supply of typhoid vaccine and it will be given freely to those who are poor and need attention.

"It is not for the man with money and who wants to guard his health without cost," said Dr. Crull, "but the vaccine will be given without cost to poor people who come to me with an order from their physicians showing that they are in danger of the disease and need attention."

City Still in Need.

Demands steadily pouring into the headquarters of the relief association plainly show that the city is still in much need of help. Secretary Harry Kaufmann and some of his assistants are personally entering the flooded districts and go directly into the homes of flood sufferers. There they have been turning up new conditions which give a small idea of the immense damage that is following the departure of the high waters.

In almost every home where the water did its damage in the outlying sections of the city, people are in need of clothing, food and furniture. The damage to furniture is great and widespread and in many instances the old household goods are beyond repair. The honesty shown by the majority of those needing help makes the relief work a pleasure. Many whose homes are badly damaged declare that they do not need help, while others want the most needy taken care of first, saying that they are willing to wait if there are other flood sufferers whose needs are more urgent.

Another Donation to Fund.

Arthur F. Hall, illustrious potentate of Mizpah Temple, Ancient Arabic order, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, this morning turned over another subscription to the shriners' donation to the relief fund. It amounted to $81 and brings the total given to date by Mizpah Temple up to $723. This is the third largest cash donation given the flood sufferers by Mizpah Temple.

New Constributions.

Additional contributions to the high water relief fund reported up to 2 o'clock this afternoon bring the total up to $11,702.14. The new donations are as follows:

H. A. Eberline, Detroit	$ 10.00

MR. MARSHALL DECLINES.

Washington, April 8.—Vice President Marshall today declined to present to the senate a set of allegations charging a western senator with improper conduct, and announced that he had returned the written charges to their author, Jim R. Jacobs, of Oklahoma City. Similar charges were presented to the United States attorney here and he found them insufficient to present to a grand jury.

Apple Land

HERE IS YOUR OPPORTUNITY, ONLY $45.00 PER ACRE.

Compare this price to what others ask. It's foolishness to be carried away with a lot of hot-air promoters' promises and led to believe that there is no apple land left, only at $200 to $500 per acre. My western travels have taught me different. I am about to divide 500 acres of as good fruit land as you will find in the United States, into 50 and 100 acre tracts. $45.00 per acre if you take 100 acres, otherwise $60.00 per acre for smaller tracts. In other words, I sell you 100 acres for about the same price others ask for 10 acres, and I guarantee every tract as represented or no sale. You run absolutely no risk when you deal with me. I would rather win your confidence than take your money. Consequently I make this exceptionally big offer. I will be pleased to meet you and talk California lands. Call, write or phone should be used, the analysis being identical with the best mother's milk. The mother will find her milk enriched and the supply increased by its use, owing to the stimulation of the lacteal glands by the (non-alcoholic) malt which is combined with strengthening extracts of wheat and with rich, creamy milk to form the food.

MERCHANTS WANT AN EXPLANATION

State President Clark is Charged With Opposing Garnishee Measure.

THREATEN TO LEAVE

Members of the Fort Wayne Retail Merchants' association who attended the regular monthly meeting Monday night at the Commercial club were informed that Ralph B. Clark, of Anderson, president of the state organization of retailers, not only opposed the passage of the garnishee bill in the state legislature, but that he personally appeared at Indianapolis and openly lobbied against the measure. The charge was made by a number of local merchants who demand an investigation and ask for an explanation from Mr. Clark.

The local organization which is one of the strongest in the state is incensed over the alleged action by the state president and a number of grocers, who worked untiringly toward the passage of the garnishee bill threaten to resign from the organization. Fort Wayne has 185 members and is one of the best supported locals in the state. It is said that it could easily cut away from the state association and continue as a separate body. It is said that there are less than 1,000 members of the state association and that the officials elected at the state convention held in Fort Wayne last January are doing nothing to increase the membership, or interest in the organization.

Secretary Harry F. Kinnerk, of the Fort Wayne association has been asked to communicate with Mr. Clark telling him of the information received here and requesting an explanation.

Other Business.

The merchants are very thankful over the work being done in Fort Wayne to relieve the flood sufferers. A resolution was passed tendering a vote of thanks to the city administration, and to the firemen and police for the work done during the flood two weeks ago.

The association accepted an invitation from Theodore F. Thieme, to attend a lecture next Monday night, at which time Mr. Thieme will speak on the subject, "What Ails Us—an Up-to-Date Diagnosis of Our Municipal Troubles."
